The Persuasive Essay

The purpose of a persuasive essay is to convince the reader to think or act a certain way. A good persuasive essay must have a strong, clearly stated thesis and a logical line of reasoning that the reader can follow. Although similar to other forms of the essay, the persuasive essay also contains the following:

- An emotional appeal

    Most writers of persuasive essays use emotion to get the readers to feel strongly about their argument.

- Opposing Argument(s)

    Writers, who anticipate, confront and refute opposing arguments, show their readers that they are knowledgeable about the other side of the issue. A line of argument answers critics in advance. By answering objections in advance, these writers strengthen their own position.

- Arguments presented in a logical or climactic order

    Persuasive essays can be organized in a number of different ways, but many writers present their arguments in a logical progression, often in the order of importance, saving the most important point for last.

Tone

Apart from the substance and the argument itself, the tone is the single most important means through which you establish your credibility. It is through tone that you convey your attitude towards the issue and the audience. The tone may be objective, satirical, solemn or angry.

Tone is even more crucial in persuasion than it is in argumentation. Facts and logic may be enough to convince one of the validity of an argument, but they do not inevitably move one to certain action. It is through tone that you make your audience feel that something is right, not only for you, but also for them.

The Persuasive Essay Outline

The persuasive essay may be written in both informal and formal methods. Your method depends on the topic and audience. Logic is a key in this writing. In the formal persuasive essay, the use of third person, present tense and stylized diction and syntax are givens. It is the creative use of conclusions, and careful undermining of opposing arguments which make this essay style stand apart from the simple literary essay.

The key to success in this essay style is the wise use of diction and writing devices, which appeal to the emotion of the reader, and sway the reader to the opinion which the writer is presenting.

Introduction: The introduction brings the topic into focus and provides an emotional appeal to bring the reader to the author's perspective. The thesis provides a clear, concise explanation of the topic or issue, and the writer's opinion. There should also be some suggestion of how the essay will be supported.
