Chinese Students in UK Further Education Rosemary A. Reynolds,2017-12-15 Chinese students in the UK have been increasing in number for many years yet competition from other Western educators and increasing investment in China s own education system has led to concern that UK institutions may soon see a decline in their market share Dr Reynolds addresses this issue in Chinese Students in UK Further Education by attempting to understand students experiences from their perspective Beginning with an exploration of why these students choose to come and study in the UK and why they are coming at younger ages the book goes on to discuss topics such as risk technology and diversity in order to understand which factors have the greatest influence on where they choose to study and whether they choose to remain at an institution Drawing on data from two different education institutions providers of GCSE A level programmes for students aged 16 18 years Dr Reynolds attempts to understand what these students experience during their studies how they manage new social relationships and whether upon course completion they achieved the results they desired at the outset Moreover the book aims to ascertain whether the students feel in hindsight that the decision to risk investing in UK further education was right and what they might communicate about UK study to contacts in China and elsewhere The book examines what further education institutions do well and where they might improve to help develop Chinese students educational experiences As such it will be essential reading for academics researchers and postgraduates in the fields of further education sociology of education international and intercultural education and mobility studies

The Best For My Child: Did the market really deliver? Fiona Millar, 2018-05-21 Parent choice diversity of school provision and the idea of a quasi market in schools have dominated education policy for the last thirty years since the passage of the 1988 Great Education Reform Act But has the market worked in the way that was intended Are schools better Do we have a fairer school system Do parents really have choice Author and journalist Fiona Millar looks at why these policies have proved so seductive to a generation of politicians and seeks to uncover whether we really are doing the best for all our children If we are not what future reform could and should look like This is an area that has preoccupied me since the early 1990s when my own children s school was one of the first to be named and shamed by Ofsted explains Millar We had first hand experience of how the market worked in practice so this is an area I have followed with close interest every since Thirty years on from the 1988 Act I feel we are ready for a new approach but that is important to understand what worked and what could be better I hope my book will help to answer those questions
