Healthier food and healthier food environments at sports events World Health Organization, 2023-08-23. Healthy, safe, and sustainable diets are important for both human and planetary health, and sports events ought to be an ideal setting to model and promote healthy eating as part of a healthy lifestyle. Yet even with the best of intentions, foods and beverages high in fats, sugars, or salt are typically abundant in and around stadia during large and small sports events, often consumed in excess by fans on match days, and are also frequently associated with sports-related marketing and sponsorships. The foods and beverages consumed at sports events contribute little to an individual's overall diet, but the total number of meals, snacks, and beverages sold can be substantial. Providing a variety of healthy, delicious, and easy-to-consume food while providing fewer options and smaller portions of unhealthy options within these environments can contribute to health, wellness, and the prevention of diet-related noncommunicable disease. Likewise, the high visibility of sports mega-events in particular offers valuable opportunities for potentially larger impact, reaching billions of fans worldwide, creating positive perceptions of healthier foods and beverages at the stadia and beyond. This document, intended for use by sports events organizers, proposes five actions to achieve healthier food and healthier food environments and suggests related activities that can happen during the planning, operational, and post-event phases of sports events. It may also be used by governments, local authorities and sports stadium managers to create a healthy public food procurement and service policy for sport settings more generally
