

Buying parts

Once you have found all the identification numbers, record them for reference when buying parts. Since the manufacturers change specifications, parts and vendors (companies that manufacture various components on the machine), providing the ID numbers is the only way to be reasonably sure that you are buying the correct parts.

Whenever possible, take the worn part to the dealer so direct comparison with the new component can be made. Along the trail from the manufacturer to the parts shelf, there are numerous places that the part can end up with the wrong number or be listed incorrectly.

New motorcycle parts - original equipment or aftermarket - are available from franchised dealers and phone or mail order outlets that advertise in motorcycle magazines. Original equipment parts (also called genuine parts) are sold by the same company that built the motorcycle. Aftermarket parts are produced by independent manufacturers. All franchised dealers, and some phone or mail order outlets, offer a complete range of original equipment parts. Franchised dealers usually also carry aftermarket high wear items such as chains, cables and brake pads, as well as accessories such as helmets and leathers. Dealers offer the advantage of face-to-face contact, so you can bring the used part in for comparison. Phone and mail order outlets may provide substantial discounts from original equipment prices, but it's a good idea to shop around before you order.

Used parts can be obtained for roughly half the price of new ones, but you can't always be sure of what you're getting. Once again, take your worn part to the salvage yard for direct comparison.

Whether buying new, used or rebuilt parts, the best course is to deal directly with someone who specializes in parts for your particular make.
