Five measurements for growth rate (GR) and 20% and 50% maximum, 1-year lengths were determined from 2005 to 2009. GR was calculated as $(L_{t+1} - L_t) / (t + 1 - t)$ with the expected 1-year length (in years) as $t + 1$ and the expected 1-year length (in years) as t .

These 15 structural and nonstructural models were fit to the data from the 1000 subjects using maximum likelihood (ML) estimation with the LISREL 8.54 computer program (Jöreskog and Sörbom, 1993). The fit of the models was evaluated using the chi-square statistic, the degrees of freedom, the goodness-of-fit index (GFI), the comparative fit index (CFI), the root mean square error of approximation (RMSEA), and the standardized root mean square residual (SRMR). The chi-square statistic is a function of the difference between the observed and expected covariance matrices. The degrees of freedom are a function of the number of parameters estimated and the number of observed variables. The GFI is a measure of the proportion of variance in the observed variables that is explained by the model. The CFI is a measure of the proportion of variance in the observed variables that is explained by the model, relative to the variance explained by a null model. The RMSEA is a measure of the average difference between the observed and expected covariance matrices. The SRMR is a measure of the average difference between the observed and expected covariance matrices.
