1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be answered.
 2. Next, gather relevant information and data to address the problem.
 3. Then, analyze the information to identify patterns and relationships.
 4. After analysis, develop a hypothesis or proposed solution.
 5. Finally, test the hypothesis through experimentation or further analysis.
 6. The results of the test should be compared to the original problem to see if the hypothesis is supported.
 7. If the hypothesis is not supported, it may need to be revised and the process repeated.
 8. Once a hypothesis is supported, it can be used to explain the problem or answer the question.
 9. The process of scientific inquiry is ongoing and iterative, often leading to new questions and discoveries.
 10. It is important to document all steps and findings to ensure the process is transparent and reproducible.
