Human Terrain System Christopher J. Sims, 2018-04-19 To avoid the footpaths which may have been mined with improvised explosive devices IEDs Ryan Evans a U S federal civilian was walking across a wheat field in Babaji Helmand Province in the spring of 2011 Evans was attached to the Royal Highland Fusiliers 2 Scots C Company a heavy infantry patrol tasked with providing security in the vicinity Begun 2 years earlier the Helmand Food Zone Program was a form of development intervention which offered subsidies seed and fertilizers to farmers who replaced lucrative opium cultivation from poppies with growing and harvesting wheat and vegetable crops Babaji had been in the control of insurgents until a few months earlier and had not received any assistance from the program during the previous year consequently there were tensions between the community and British forces As Evans and the patrol emerged from the field an Afghan man sitting nearby clearly irate shouted in Pashto that the British soldiers had wanted the farmer to grow wheat instead of poppy and then the same British soldiers walked through their fields At the immediate level the encounter demonstrated the direct link between conflict food security and local trade but conflict has many interrelated and mutual dependencies such that the anecdote is instructive on myriad broader milieus Where for example is the tipping point that makes a civilian value creating an expression of discontent to a heavily armed patrol above his immediate physical security Do livelihoods and cultures affect military strategies Are there interdependencies between insurgencies societies and economies Does the language of war require a sociological grammar in order to be understood Armed conflict is a human enterprise such that by extension understanding of the human dimension in a given area of operations should be thought integral to planning successful operations
