

LADIES' Home Journal

The Ladies' Home Journal, 1893      Ladies' Home Journal, 1889      Hearings United States. Congress. House. Select Committee on Small Business, 1970      Hearings, Reports and Prints of the House Select Committee on Small Business United States. Congress. House. Select Committee on Small Business, 1970      The American Amateur Photographer, 1903      The Photo-beacon, 1903      Camera Craft, 1902      The Contest of Meaning Richard Bolton, 1992-02-25 Photography's great success gives the impression that the major questions that have haunted the medium are now resolved. On the contrary, the most important questions about photography are just beginning to be asked. These fourteen essays with over 200 illustrations critically examine prevailing beliefs about the medium and suggest new ways to explain the history of photography. They are organized around the questions: What are the social consequences of aesthetic practice? How does photography construct sexual difference? How is photography used to promote class and national interests? What are the politics of photographic truth? The Contest of Meaning summarizes the challenges to traditional photographic history that have developed in the last decade out of a consciously political critique of photographic production. Contributions by a wide range of important Americans critically reexamine the complex and often contradictory roles of photography within society. Douglas Crimp, Christopher Phillips, Benjamin Buchloh, and Abigail Solomon Godeau examine the gradually developed exclusivity of art photography and describe the politics of canon formation throughout modernism. Catherine Lord, Deborah Bright, Sally Stein, and Jan Zita Grover examine the ways in which the female is configured as a subject and explain how sexual difference is constructed across various registers of photographic representation. Carol Squiers, Esther Parada, and Richard Bolton clarify the ways in which photography serves as a form of mass communication, demonstrating in particular how photographic production is affected by the interests of the powerful patrons of communications. The three concluding essays by Rosalind Krauss, Martha Rosler, and Allan Sekula critically examine the concept of photographic truth by exploring the intentions informing various uses of objective images within society.      Printers' Ink, 1914      N.E.L.A. Enduring Bonds Philip N. Cohen, 2018-02-06 Modern families provide essential support for happiness and well-being, but they are also engines of inequality between men and women, between adults and children, and also between those who have supportive families and those who don't. The ability to successfully manage a family life is a modern marker of individual competence, and any failure risks social scorn and stigma. This collection of essays, tied to events in the news and using original demographic data with intuitive graphics, addresses the place of families in our system of inequality, the politics of family structure, and change the role of gender differentiation and segregation in family inequality and the intersection of families with other forms of inequality.
