

Introduction

This document describes the basic hardware setup tasks for a factory-installed EMC[®] VPLEX[™] cluster at a customer site. Steps are included to install V50 and V50 VPLEX hardware.

Prerequisites

- Verify that you have the following documents:

- EMC Best Practices Guide for All Power Connections on the VPLEX Edge - Power requirements, including independent power feeds to all separate systems (included in Open Host Box)
- EMC All Power Configuration Worksheet - Power cabling identification (included in Open Host Box)
- EMC All Power Config and Setup Guide - Instructions to connect and secure the hardware in the data center (included in host box)

- Insert the equipment into the data center. The equipment is shown in the following table before you apply power, to prevent misconnection on VPLEX components.

Component/connector	Host location	On customer equipment host connection
Power V50 VPLEX	Power
100 V to 120 V AC to V50	Power
120 V to 120 V AC to V50	Power	120 V to 120 V AC to V50
Power V50 VPLEX	Power
Power V50 VPLEX	Power

- Confirm that the following customer-supplied cables are available:

- Single-line copper cables to connect all customer's I/O connections, with cable with enough additional length for independent cable availability and a maximum run of 300 feet (91 m)
- Independent cable, to connect the VPLEX management network to the network
- Two AC power cables from separate site power sources

- Review the following information, available in EMC PowerLink[®]:

- EMC VPLEX Site Preparation Guide, for electrical, mechanical, and cooling requirements
- EMC Single Support Matrix, for support information on VPLEX integration into the customer's storage environment
- Implementation and Planning Best Practices for EMC VPLEX Hardware Installation
- EMC VPLEX with Configuration Assistant Configuration Worksheet - Download for use during VPLEX setup

Procedure

- Remove the cable holder kit from the Open Host Box, and place it over the ports on the inside of the cabinet's rear door.
- V50 hardware only:
 - At the front of the cabinet, remove each engine's front, and confirm that the components shown in the following figure are secure.

- At the rear of the cabinet, push in on each connector and the I/O module (EMC) connector 10 to verify, and not fully seated, insert the storage array, push the component fully in, and reinsert the screw. Verify that each EMC's latch button is in.

- V50 hardware only:

- At the front of the cabinet, remove the 10/100/1000 front panel. Approximately, use fingers below the VPLEX connector, to expose the highest connector loop. Then remove and discard the two Phillips screws (used only for shipping that secure the tray to the VPLEX), and snap the front panel back into place.

- Remove each engine's front panel. Then check the latch on all power supplies, and confirm that the components are secure. If any latch is not locked, replace the front panel.

- At the rear, check the latch on all modules, and confirm that the components are secure. Verify that each module's latch button is in.

- V50 and V50 - Pull gently on each V50 on the I/O module, and to prevent damage to internal modules, to ensure that the V50s are secure.

Do not V50 to force:

- Release the spring latch.
- Push the V50 fully in.
- Release the spring latch.

- Verify each cable connection by pressing the cable connector into its port or receptacle. Check the AC power cable connections closely and confirm that any non-cable latches are positioned as shown in the following figure.

- Verify that the equipment is fully and located in the data-center environment, as described in "Powering on" step 2.

- Insert EMC backdoor power connections.

- Insert EMC all I/O V50s connect hardware.

- Insert EMC all V50s connect hardware.

- Connect customer-supplied AC power cables from the V50s to site power as described in the EMC Best Practices Guide for All Power Connections on the VPLEX Edge.

- Insert EMC backdoor power connections.

- Complete the EMC All Power Configuration Worksheet. Then, hold it in both hands and place it over the front of cabinet's rear door.

- Verify the V50 status on each V50.

NOTE: The On-Battery LED stays on while the V50s are fully charged. Refresh could be a few minutes or a few hours.

- Connect customer-supplied fiber optic cables from the front-end and back-end V50s to the appropriate V50s I/O ports. Do not touch the end of any fiber optic cable, to avoid damage or contamination.

Use independent physical fiber channel links to connect each front-end V50 to each back-end V50. Do not connect the front-end V50s to each other, or the back-end V50s to each other. To prevent data unavailability, ensure that each fiber in a storage area has paths to at least two distinct V50s, and that multipathing is configured to distribute the paths evenly between distinct V50s and that each engine can access the paths.

- Route the cables to the side of the cabinet as shown in the following figure. Do prevent blocking components. Maximize a minimum radius of two inches for any bend in a fiber channel cable. Do a V50 cable, route the cables along the cable management trays.

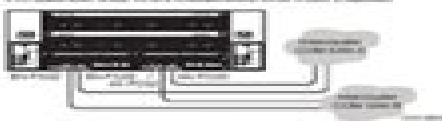

- Connect the management port to the customer IT network.

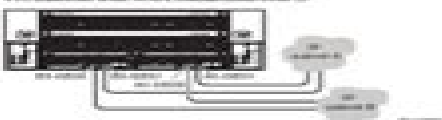

- V50 hardware only or V50 hardware only - Connect the interconnect cables as shown in the figure that applies to your SAN/FCM connection. Ensure that each device has two independent paths to each device in the other direction. (This connection is the same for each engine in a cluster.)

Next steps

- Install and install the VPLEX Provisioning Connection from PowerLink to ensure additional system requirements, and troubleshooting information.
- Work with the customer to complete the EMC VPLEX with Configuration Assistant Configuration Worksheet, and give it to the customer.
- Follow the procedures in the EMC VPLEX with Configuration Assistant Configuration Guide to configure the cluster for operation in the customer environment.
