are the basic units for science from ecosystems to model organisms Yet there are communication gaps between the scientists who name species called taxonomists or systematists and those who use species names everyone else This book opens the black box of species names to explain the tricks of the name makers to the name users Species are real and have macroevolutionary meaning and it follows that systematists use a broadly macroevolution oriented approach in describing diversity But scientific names are used by all areas of science including many fields such as ecology that focus on timescales more dominated by microevolutionary processes This book explores why different groups of scientists understand and use the names given to species in very different ways and the consequences for measuring and understanding biodiversity Key selling features Explains the modern multi disciplinary approach to studying species evolution and species discovery and the role of species names in diverse fields throughout the life sciences Documents the importance and urgent need for high quality taxonomic work to address today s most pressing problems Summarises controversies in combining different sometimes quite different datasets used to estimate global biodiversity Focusses throughout on a central theme the disconnect between the makers and the users of names and seeks to create the rhetorical foundation needed to bridge this disconnect Anticipates the future of taxonomy and its role in studies of global biodiversity
