Jackson, Denise Paraventi, Michael Wright, 2018-12-20 This two volume set represents a collection of papers presented at the 18th International Conference on Environmental Degradation of Materials in Nuclear Power Systems Water Reactors The purpose of this conference series is to foster an exchange of ideas about problems and their remedies in water cooled nuclear power plants of today and the future Contributions cover problems facing nickel based alloys stainless steels pressure vessel and piping steels zirconium alloys and other alloys in water environments of relevance Components covered include pressure boundary components reactor vessels and internals steam generators fuel cladding irradiated components fuel storage containers and balance of plant components and systems Nuclear Corrosion Science and Engineering Damien Feron, 2012-02-21 Corrosion of nuclear materials i.e. the interaction between these materials and their environments is a major issue for plant safety as well as for operation and economic competitiveness. Understanding these corrosion mechanisms, the systems and materials they affect and the methods to accurately measure their incidence is of critical importance to the nuclear industry. Combining assessment techniques and analytical models into this understanding allows operators to predict the service life of corrosion affected nuclear plant materials and to apply the most appropriate maintenance and mitigation options to ensure safe long term operation. This book critically reviews the fundamental corrosion mechanisms that affect nuclear power plants and facilities. Initial sections introduce the complex field of nuclear corrosion science with detailed chapters on the different types of both aqueous and non aqueous corrosion mechanisms and the nuclear materials susceptible to attack from them. This is complemented by reviews of monitoring and control methodologies as well as modelling and lifetime prediction approaches. Given that corrosion is an applied science, the final sections review corrosion issues across the range of current and next generation nuclear reactors and across such nuclear applications as fuel reprocessing facilities, radioactive waste storage and geological disposal systems. With its distinguished editor and international team of expert contributors, Nuclear corrosion science and engineering is an invaluable reference for nuclear metallurgists, materials scientists and engineers as well as nuclear facility operators, regulators and consultants and researchers and academics in this field. Comprehensively reviews the fundamental corrosion mechanisms that affect nuclear power plants and facilities. Chapters assess different types of both aqueous and non aqueous corrosion mechanisms and the nuclear materials susceptible to attack from them. Considers monitoring and control methodologies as well as modelling and lifetime prediction approaches Instrumentation and Process Control for Fossil Demonstration Plants Argonne National Laboratory, 1977 Irradiation Technology Peter von der Hardt, Heinz Röttger, 2012-12-06 The International Topical Meeting on Irradiation Technology took place two weeks after the Conference on the Neutron and its Applications in Cambridge, UK, marking the 50th anniversary of the discovery of the neutron. The application of neutrons from research reactors for materials testing requires a large variety of irradiation devices, vehicles and their out of pile control and recording equipment. The in pile sections are sophisticated in design and assembly, expensive and consumable. There have been only a few international conferences on irradiation testing, the last one being limited to fast breeder reactor work in Jackson, Wyoming, September 1973. In 1982, however, two conferences picked up similar topics: the ANS Conference on Fast Thermal and Fusion Reactor Experiments in Salt Lake City, Utah, April 1982, and the Grenoble meeting. These proceedings overlapping has been avoided by putting the accent of the US conference on fast reactor work and on thermal reactor experiments at Grenoble. Put together both conferences lined up more than 130 papers in this very specialised field, demonstrating a high level of technological development as opposed to a decreasing number of large materials testing reactors available. The editors wish to acknowledge the flawless organisation of the meeting by CEN de Grenoble and the personal commitment of CEN staff to its success Special thanks go to F Merchie and J F Veyrat of the Service des Piles P von der Hardt H Röttger XIII P von der Hardt and H Röttger eds Irradiation Technology xiii The Composite Catalog of Oil Field Equipment & Services ,1996

Advances in Cryogenic Engineering Quan-Sheng Shu,Peter Kittel,David Glaister,John Hull,Bill Burt,Al Zeller,John Zbasnik,Vitalij Pecharsky,Steven W. Van Sciver,Ray Radebaugh,Michael DiPirro,J. Patrick Kelley,Klaus D. Timmerhaus,Jay Theilacker,Charles Reece,2013-12-19 In recent years the technology of cryogenic comminution has been widely applied in the field of chemical engineering food making medicine production and particularly in recycling of waste materials Because of the increasing pollution of waste tires and the shortage of raw rubber resource the recycling process for waste rubber products has become important and commercially viable This technology has shown a great number of advantages such as causing no environmental pollution requiring low energy consumption and producing high quality products Hence the normal crusher which was used to reclaim materials such as waste tires nylon plastic and many polymer materials at atmospheric 12 temperature is being replaced by a cryogenic crusher In the cryogenic crusher the property of the milled material is usually very sensitive to temperature change When a crusher is in operation it will generate a great deal of heat that causes the material temperature increased Once the temperature increases over the vitrification temperature the material property will change and lose the brittle behavior causing the energy consumption to rise sharply Consequently the comminution process cannot be continued Therefore it is believed that the cryogenic crusher is the most critical component in the cryogenic comminution system The research on the temperature increase and energy consumption in the cryogenic crusher is not only to reduce the energy consumption of the crusher but also to reduce the energy consumption of the cryogenic system
