The End of Morality Richard Joyce, Richard Garner, 2018-12-18 According to the moral error theorist all moral judgments are mistaken The world just doesn t contain the properties and relations necessary for these judgments to be true But what should we actually do if we decided that we are in this radical and unsettling predicament that morality is just a widespread and heartfelt illusion One suggestion is to eliminate all talk and thought of morality abolitionism Another is to carry on believing it anyway conservatism And yet another is to treat morality as a kind of convenient fiction fictionalism We tend to think of moral thinking as valuable and useful e g for motivating cooperative behavior but we can also recognize that it can be harmful e g hindering compromise and even disastrous e g inspiring support for militaristic propaganda Would we be better off or worse off if we stopped basing decisions on moral considerations This is a collection of twelve brand new chapters focused on a critical examination of the options available to the moral error theorist After a general introduction outlining the topic explaining key terminology and offering suggestions for further reading the chapters address questions like Is it true that the more that people are motivated by moral concerns the more likely it is that society will be elitist authoritarian and dishonest Is an appeal to moral values a useful tool for helping resolve conflicts or does it actually exacerbate conflicts Would it even be possible to abolish morality from our thinking If we were to accept a moral error theory would it be feasible to carry on believing in morality in everyday contexts Might moral discourse be usefully modeled on familiar metaphorical language where we can convey useful and important truths by uttering falsehoods Does moral thinking support or undermine a commitment to feminist goals What role do moral judgments play in addressing important decisions affecting climate change

The End of Morality Taking Moral Abolitionism Seriously is the first book to thoroughly address these and other questions systematically investigating the harms and benefits of moral thought and considering what the world might be like without morality

Paradigm Debates in Curriculum and Supervision Linda Behar-Horenstein, Jeffrey Glanz, 2000-01-30. Paradigm debates in the educational research community are a frequent if not common occurrence. How do paradigm debates in other educational fields such as curriculum and supervision shape educators' understanding and practice? In this volume, it is suggested that educators' adherence to particular views of curriculum and supervision is influential in guiding their beliefs and subsequent actions. For example, a widely accepted belief is that if an individual adopts a mechanistic view of the curriculum, then s/he is likely to deliver a curriculum grounded in pre-established objectives and evaluate student achievement in relationship to formulated objectives. Postmodernists contend that such educators are bound by rigid bifurcation and a constrictive linear logic. In supervision, educational leaders who favor leadership styles comprised by autocratic behaviors tend to create school climates that favor a top-down approach to human relationships. Autocratic leaders rely on hierarchical organizational structures and styles that seek to instill compliance and subordination. Yet prospective administrators who want concrete proposals put in practice find modern perspectives of supervision helpful. In contrast, postmodern supervisors allege that such leaders disallow the emergence of relevant and authentic relationships that might occur when conventional hierarchical structures are diminished and open lines of communication between teachers, students, administrators become normative. The chapters in this book present an in-depth analysis of how an individual's predisposition towards modern and postmodern views of curriculum and supervision are likely to influence:

1. curriculum development
2. teaching styles
3. leadership styles
4. teacher and student evaluation
5. the missions intrinsic to the creation of professional preparation programs that serve to promulgate existing practice or create a new order of teachers and administrators.
