⚠ WARNING

Abstract – The effect of the use of a mobile phone on the performance of a simulated driving task was investigated. The participants were divided into two groups: one group used a mobile phone while driving, and the other group did not. The results showed that the use of a mobile phone significantly reduced the performance of the driving task, as measured by reaction time and error rate. The study also found that the use of a mobile phone increased the risk of distraction and reduced the ability to respond to emergency situations. The results suggest that the use of a mobile phone while driving is a significant risk factor for accidents and should be discouraged.

Use of display unit while driving will cause distraction and loss of vehicle control which may lead to serious injury or death.
