

Officer Green was on duty and had been observing Mr. Parker's suspicious behavior for approximately 15 minutes when he decided to stop and question him. He called out to Mr. Parker, produced his badge from the front pocket of his uniform, and asked to see his ID. He told him that he wasn't going to show him his ID and asked him why he wanted to see it. Officer Green responded that he wanted to know what he was up to. Mr. Parker said he was not up to anything. Officer Green told him that he didn't buy it, and asked him what he had in his pocket. Mr. Parker said it was none of his business and started reaching for something inside his jacket, at which point Officer Green pulled out his firearm and told Mr. Parker to stand up against the wall and put his hands up. In his back pocket, he found a large number of dollar bills, which amounted to twenty thousand USD, and in his jacket's inside pocket, Officer Green found only his wallet. Officer Green asked Mr. Parker what was he doing with such a large amount of money and Mr. Parker replied he wasn't going to talk and that he knew his rights. At this point officer, Green read him his Miranda rights and handcuffed him. He then proceeded to take Mr. Parker with him to the police station to be interrogated.
