Corporate Reputation and Competitiveness Rosa Chun, Rui Da Silva, Gary Davies, Stuart Roper,2005-09-29 This unique book, written by four world leaders in reputation research, presents the latest cutting edge thinking on organizational improvement. It covers media management, crisis management, the use of logos and other aspects of corporate identity and argues the case for reputation management as a way of overseeing long term organizational strategy. It presents a new approach to managing reputation, one that relies on surveying customers and employees on their view of the corporate character and in harmonizing the values of both. This approach has been trialled in a number of organizations and here the authors demonstrate how improving reputation merely by learning more about what a company is already doing is worth some five per cent sales growth. The book is a vital up to date resource for specialists in corporate communication, public relations, marketing, HRM and business strategy as well as for all senior management. Highly illustrated with over eighty diagrams and tables, it includes up to the transport is particularly challenging given its dependence on oil with transport being the only sector of the UK economy in which carbon emissions were higher in 2004 than the baseline year of 1990 and projected emissions likely to be higher in 2020 than in 1990. Amongst the report's 66 conclusions and recommendations the Committee raises concerns over the lack of consistency and accuracy in methods used by the Government to calculate emissions projections and highlights the need for more decisive action to actively encourage modal shift towards lower carbon modes of transport such as trains, buses and low carbon cars and lorries and to discourage marginal car and plane journeys. It recommends the introduction of a national road user charging scheme as soon as technically possible and a new policy to enforce speed limits and an increase in air passenger duty (APD) and taxes on domestic flights. The report also calls for better local rail services and the need to make rail fare and ticketing structures simpler and more transparent in order to encourage greater use of rail services and the need for a public information campaign to raise awareness about the reality and dangers of climate change and a cross party approach to the measures required to tackle it.
