

ANSWERS AND EXPLANATIONS

Each time a person enters the room, the computer generates a number and then randomly selects a name from the names placed in bowls for each group. The name that is called reads the problem, and that person then solves the problem. A new problem is then presented and the person that has read that problem randomly selects the person to read the next problem.

After the 10 problems are all completed, each is read again. The group that read the problem receives the average number of seconds it took to solve that problem. The person spending the least amount of time receives a reward, and the person spending the most time receives a punishment.

The teacher takes 1 minute per problem, spends 10 minutes each group and 10 minutes each time for the student. The time reading the problem, solving the problem and reading the answer is subtracted from the time receiving punishment, resulting in a net amount of time reading for that person. All of these numbers belonging to each group are added.

After all 30 problems are solved, the group that has the lowest total time is awarded a prize and each student is awarded a certificate of achievement for their group.

The next day a new version of the problem is used. It is observed that groups are all performing the same strategy and it is decided to use a different problem for the next day.

The teacher then asks the students to write a problem.

There are 10 groups. Each group has 10 students. Each student has 10 minutes to write.

ANSWER EXPLANATION: The time spent on all the groups that are participating will equal 100 minutes. Each group has 10 students.
