Sutterby, 2011-10-06 Focuses on the implementation of professional development for early childhood educators describing a number of models for improving early childhood care This title provides future developers of professional development with a road map for what works and what might not be as effective      Managing Military Child Care Centers, 1982      Enabling Environments Edward Steinfeld, G. Scott Danford, 2013-06-29 This volume is the first effort to compile representative work in the emerging research area on the relationship of disability and physical environment since Barrier Free Environments edited by Michael Bednar was published in 1977 Since that time disability rights legislation like the Americans with Disabilities Act in the United States the worldwide growth of the independent living movement rapid deinstitutionalization and the maturation of functional assessment methodology have all had their impact on this research area The impact has been most noticeable in two ways fostering the integration of environmental variables in rehabilitation research and practice and changing paradigms for environmental interventions As the contributions in this volume demonstrate the relationship of disability and physical environment is no longer of interest primarily to designers and other professionals concerned with managing the resources of the built environment The physical environment has always been recognized as an important variable affecting rehabilitation outcome Until recently however concepts and tools were not available to measure its impact in clinical practice and outcomes research In particular lack of a theoretical foundation that integrated environment with the disablement process hampered development of both research and clinical methodology Thus the physical environment received little attention from the mainstream rehabilitation research community However this situation is changing rapidly      Occupational Therapy Evaluation for Children : a Pocket Guide Shelley Mulligan, 2014 In pediatrics occupational therapy practitioners are concerned most with positively impacting the extent to which children and their families are able to successfully and meaningfully go about their daily lives whether it be playing learning working caring for oneself or others or socializing Clinical decisions made throughout the evaluation process ultimately shape what and how occupational therapy practitioners deliver interventions perhaps making the evaluation process the most important and interesting part of the service delivery process It is the context where we first come to know and appreciate our clients their specific situations and discover what it is that we as occupational therapy practitioners can do to be of most help Provided by publisher      Creating a Learning Environment for Babies and Toddlers Ann Clare, 2012-02-21 Shortlisted for the 2012 Nursery World Awards Understanding the factors that contribute to a positive learning environment is vital for those working with children from birth to 3 years Using extensive case study material Ann Clare focuses on the experiences of babies and toddlers in various care settings and the role adults play in developing creative and supportive environments The effect on speech and language development is explored with reference to recent research and initiatives Information gathered from parents and childcare workers helps provide a deep consideration of parents' childcare choices Topics covered include the emotional environment the role of adults in the

to their purpose and the design of the larger systems in which they are used Early Childhood Assessment addresses these issues by identifying the important outcomes for children from birth to age 5 and the quality and purposes of different techniques and instruments for developmental assessments The Best of Head Start United States.
