The Suffering Self Judith Perkins, 2002-09-11 The Suffering Self is a ground breaking interdisciplinary study of the spread of Christianity across the Roman empire Judith Perkins shows how Christian narrative representation in the early empire worked to create a new kind of human self understanding the perception of the self as sufferer Drawing on feminist and social theory she addresses the question of why forms of suffering like martyrdom and self mutilation were so important to early Christians This study crosses the boundaries between ancient history and the study of early Christianity seeing Christian representation in the context of the Greco Roman world She draws parallels with suffering heroines in Greek novels and in martyr acts and examines representations in medical and philosophical texts Judith Perkins controversial study is important reading for all those interested in ancient society or in the history of Christianity Gentlemen's Prescriptions for Women's Lives: A Thousand Years of Biographies of Chinese Women Sherry J. Mou, 2015-07-17 As far back as the first century BCE Chinese dynastic historians all men began recording the achievements of Chinese women and creating a structure of understanding that would be used to limit and control them To men these women became role models for their daughters and wives to the few literate women readers they became paradigms for their own behavior Thus although these biographies are descriptive by nature they actually became prescriptive Gentlemen's Prescriptions for Women's Lives is an enlightening source for studying Chinese women of the Imperial era as well as for understanding Chinese womanhood in general By contextualizing these biographies the author shows us these women not just as the complaisant calm eyed delicate figures that adorn Confucian texts but also as the products of the Confucian tradition's appropriation of women A Select Library of the Nicene and Post-Nicene
