Making Meaning by Making Connections Kathy L. Schuh, 2016-10-20 This book documents those first links that students make between content they learn in their classrooms and their prior experiences Through six late elementary school case studies these knowledge construction links are brought to life The links of the students are often rich in describing who these individuals are where they are in their learning process and what is meaningful to them Many times these links point to what has been learned both in and out of school and the contexts when and where that learning took place The mind as rhizome metaphor was used to guide the development and interpretation of the studies while the lens of Peircian semiotics provides an interpretation for these initial links The resulting grounded theory is presented through a rich and extensive presentation of excerpts from classroom observations student interviews and a student writing activity and describes the varying types of student links how the links were prompted the relationships between what the students were learning and what they already knew and specific types of in school links The narrative includes how these links were supported or inhibited in the classroom drawing on the roles of the teachers in the classrooms and what constituted authority sources of information in those classrooms Before exploring the students linking as a process of ongoing semiosis and how this process is part of a dynamic system a study of the relationship between student knowledge links and achievement is shared This rich narrative will be of interest to scholars and practitioners alike and includes an extensive appendix documenting the research methods

My Stone of Hope Jean-Robert Cadet, 2011-11-08 There are 27 million slaves living in the world today more than at any time in history Three hundred thousand of them are impoverished children in Haiti who stay with families as unpaid and uneducated domestic workers subject to physical emotional and sexual abuse This practice known locally as restavek staying with is so widespread that one in ten Haitian children is caught up in this form of slavery Jean Robert Cadet was a restavek in Haiti from the late 1950s until the early 1970s He told the harrowing story of his youth in Restavec From Haitian Slave Child to Middle Class American a landmark book that exposed ongoing child slavery in Haiti Now in My Stone of Hope Cadet continues his story from his early attempts to adjust to freedom in American society to his current life mission of eliminating child slavery through advocacy and education As he recounts his own struggles to surmount the psychological wounds of slavery Cadet puts a human face on the suffering that hundreds of thousands of Haitians still endure daily He also builds a convincing case that child slavery is not just one among many problems that Haiti faces as the Western Hemisphere's poorest nation Rather he argues that the systematic abuse of so many of its children is Haiti's fundamental problem because it creates damaged adults who seem incapable of governing the country justly or managing its economy productively For everyone concerned about the fate of Haiti the welfare of children and the freedom of people around the globe My Stone of Hope sounds an irresistible call to action
