The Art of Screen Time Anya Kamenetz, 2018-01-30 Finally an evidence based reassuring guide to what to do about kids and screens from video games to social media Today's babies often make their debut on social media with the very first sonogram They begin interacting with screens at around four months old But is this good news or bad news A wonderful opportunity to connect around the world Or the first step in creating a generation of addled screen zombies Many have been quick to declare this the dawn of a neurological and emotional crisis but solid science on the subject is surprisingly hard to come by In The Art of Screen Time Anya Kamenetz an expert on education and technology as well as a mother of two young children takes a refreshingly practical look at the subject Surveying hundreds of fellow parents on their practices and ideas and cutting through a thicket of inconclusive studies and overblown claims she hones a simple message a riff on Michael Pollan's well known food rules Enjoy Screens Not too much Mostly with others This brief but powerful dictum forms the backbone of a philosophy that will help parents moderate technology in their children's lives curb their own anxiety and create room for a happy healthy family life with and without screens

Active Learning: Theoretical Perspectives, Empirical Studies and Design Profiles Robert Cassidy, Elizabeth S. Charles, James D. Slotta, Nathaniel Lasry, 2019-07-11 This book represents the emerging efforts of a growing international network of researchers and practitioners to promote the development and uptake of evidence based pedagogies in higher education at something a level approaching large scale impact By offering a communication venue that attracts and enhances much needed partnerships among practitioners and researchers in pedagogical innovation we aim to change the conversation and focus on how we work and learn together i.e. extending the implementation and knowledge of co design methods In this first edition of our Research Topic on Active Learning we highlight two of the three types of publications we wish to promote First are studies aimed at understanding the pedagogical designs developed by practitioners in their own practices by bringing to bear the theoretical lenses developed and tested in the education research community These types of studies constitute the practice pull that we see as a necessary counterbalance to knowledge push in a more productive pedagogical innovation ecosystem based on research practitioner partnerships Second are studies empirically examining the implementations of evidence based designs in naturalistic settings and under naturalistic conditions Interestingly the teams conducting these studies are already exemplars of partnerships between researchers and practitioners who are uniquely positioned as in betweens straddling the two worlds As a result these publications represent both the rigours of research and the pragmatism of reflective practice In forthcoming editions

we will add to this collection a third type of publication design profiles These will present practitioner developed pedagogical designs at varying levels of abstraction to be held to scrutiny amongst practitioners instructional designers and researchers alike We hope by bringing these types of studies together in an open access format that we may contribute to the development of new forms of practitioner researcher interactions that promote co design in pedagogical innovation

Occupational Medicine: Disease Risk Factors and Health Promotion Luigi Vimercati, Silvio Tafuri, Nicola Mucci, Caterina Ledda, Vladimir Jurisic, 2022-02-25 Alternative Models of Addiction Hanna Pickard, Serge H. Ahmed, Bennett Foddy, 2015-12-07 For much of the 20th century theories of addictive behaviour and motivation were polarized between two models The first model viewed addiction as a moral failure for which addicts are rightly held responsible and judged accordingly The second model in contrast viewed addiction as a specific brain disease caused by neurobiological adaptations occurring in response to chronic drug or alcohol use and over which addicts have no choice or control As our capacity to observe neurobiological phenomena improved the second model became scientific orthodoxy increasingly dominating addiction research and informing public understandings of addiction More recently however a dissenting view has emerged within addiction research based partly on new scientific research and partly on progress in philosophical and psychological understandings of relevant mental phenomena This view does not revert to treating addiction as a moral failure but nonetheless holds that addictive behaviour is fundamentally motivated by choice and subject to at least a degree of voluntary control On this alternative model of addiction addictive behaviour is an instrumental means to ends that are desired by the individual although much controversy exists with respect to the rationality or irrationality of these ends the degree and nature of the voluntary control of addictive behaviour and motivation the explanation of the difference between addictive and non addictive behaviour and motivation and lastly the extent to which addictive behaviour and motivation is correctly characterised as pathological or diseased This research topic includes papers in the traditions of neuroscience psychology philosophy law and social science that explore alternative understandings of addiction 2025-26 UPPSC LT Grade Computer Science Solved Papers YCT Expert Team , 2025 26 UPPSC LT Grade Computer Science Solved Papers 624 995
