Maki, 2023-07-03 Assessment on college campuses has a sordid history and it is fairly simple to find someone with a traumatic tale to tell It is wise to respect that that reputation is deserved How do you modify the inner workings and culture of a massive institution with minimal resources and even less authority other than GE course approvals and thousands and thousands of talented people busy doing other things The road to departmental assessment can seem both dramatic and apocalyptic especially if one's departmental centre cannot hold and purpose falls apart The Department of English and Linguistics is presently on this journey slouching towards its own revelations of mission and fulfillment of purpose I have become more optimistic about the potential value of the process even if some of my initial skepticism remains This skepticism however has been valuable forcing me to think in more concrete ways about what I do in the classroom As these excerpts show this is no conventional book about assessment It presents the unvarnished first person accounts of fourteen faculty and administrators about how they grappled and engaged with assessment and how despite misgivings and an often contentious process they were able to gain the collaboration of their peers as the benefits for student learning became evident This is a book for skeptical faculty for those who have been tasked to spearhead their institution's call to create a culture of assessment and on campuses where assessment has been widely accepted and implemented for those who now need to ensure this commitment will endure For all these audiences this book offers valuable advice strategies models and ideas Resources in Education ,2001 The Administration's National Testing Proposal United States. Brookings Papers on Education Policy: 2003 Diane Ravitch,2010-12-01 In 1983 the seminal report issued by the National Commission on Excellence in Education A Nation at Risk charged that most American high schoolers were following a general course of instruction choosing neither the college preparatory track nor the vocational option This pattern the report complained had fostered low expectations and a curricular hodge podge of classes that failed to prepare students for college or work The commission called on states to implement academic requirements for all students regardless of background including four years of English and three years each of science mathematics and social studies Students should not be sorted by their presumed future destinations the commission reasoned but should be offered an equal opportunity to get a high quality education to fit them either for postsecondary education or the modern workplace Two decades after the commission called on states to reform the high school environment and raise graduation requirements the Brown Center on Education Policy at the Brookings Institution convened a a group of prominent scholars to explore the current state of America s high schools focusing on new research about reforming these institutions that are so important in the lives of the nation s adolescents The questions considered reflected the diversity of the participants and covered a variety of areas historical international sociological and practical Data gathered by the U S Department of Education show students today are taking many more advanced courses in mathematics and the sciences while at the same time test scores do not reflect the increases in enrollments in academic courses In addition large score gaps remain among students from different social groups Reform of the high schools must take into account the elementary and middle schools that prepare students and the postsecondary institutions to which students aspire Adolescent culture and students views about school and academic work play important roles in student achievement as do the family and contemporary society in shaping of adolescent behavior No matter their background all participants agreed that the key to a successful high school rests with the extent to which it recognizes and strengthens its commitment to the intellectual growth of its students Functional Behavioral Assessment, Diagnosis, and Treatment, Third Edition Ennio Cipani,2017-07-28 Featuring a highly interactive approach sanctions Sick Schools David V. Anderson, 2020-01-10 Who's afraid of for-profit education? Those who work in non-profit or government-owned and operated schools. Many parents and other stakeholders have been made fearful by this education establishment. What's more important to humans: nutrition or education? Nutrition is more important because it is the prerequisite for other human activities, including education. What organizations provide food, and who pays for the food? Food is provided by for-profit farmers, for-profit processors, for-profit wholesalers, and for-profit retailers. Most food is purchased with the consumer's own money, but a significant amount is purchased by low-income individuals using food stamps. Why can't education be provided similarly using education stamps? We trust for-profit enterprises to provide our food. Why can't we trust for-profit enterprises to provide K-12 education? Fear-mongers have frightened us and made us into gullible, compliant socialists who despise commercial activities in education. Go to the supermarket and ponder its marvelous array of foods, and then contemplate how a for-profit K-12 education sector would please and amaze its customers. Untold Narratives Shawn Anthony Robinson, 2018-02-01 This edited book reflects a much-needed area of scholarship as the voices of African American (AA) or Black students, defined by various labels such as learning disability, blindness, visual impairment, cognitive development, speech or language impairment, and hearing impairment, are rare within the scholarly literature. Students tagged with those identifiers within the K-20 academic system have not only been ignored and discounted but have also had their learning framed from a deficit perspective rather than a strength-based perspective. Moreover, it was uncommon to hear first-person narratives about how AA students have understood their positions within the general education and special education systems. Therefore, with a pervasive lack of knowledge when it comes to understanding the experiences of AA students with disabilities, this book describes personal experiences and challenges the idea that AA students with disabilities are substandard. While this book will emphasize successful narratives, it will also provide counter-narratives to demystify the myth that those with disabilities cannot succeed or obtain terminal degrees. Overall, this edited book is a much-needed contribution to the scholarly literature and may help teachers across a wide array of academic disciplines in meeting the academic and social needs of AA students with disabilities. ENDORSEMENTS Dr. Shawn Robinson's collection of personal narratives raises critical questions about the U.S. public education system. Written by African Americans compartmentalized in special education programs because of actual or perceived disabilities, these stories will impel readers, even tangentially affiliated with educational institutions, to consider testing, placement, mainstreaming, retention, and promotion, and other assessment policies that determine grade-level readiness. Thanks to Robinson, the perspectives of these graduates who surmounted barriers to more positive and accommodating learning environments now receive proper attention. John Pruitt, University of Wisconsin-Rock County. With a bold vision, Dr. Shawn Anthony Robinson enters the discussion of Special Education with a collection of narratives that highlight the struggles and triumphs of marginalized students. In America, we have a long, contested history of inclusion of students of color and difference in our public mainstream institutions. When these students are invited to the education table they still must overcome persistent and pernicious barriers to true and equal educational opportunities. Consequently, students are left to sink or swim in oceans of disparity and inequity. This collection of narratives and counter narratives confronts the absence of adequate research and other empirical evidence of pedagogy and practice that would be essential to 21st Century progress in educational praxis. This volume represents one important step towards adding new voices to the continuing struggle of meaningful inclusion. How might students of color and difference succeed in an education system that provides no room to bloom? The authors address this challenge by exploring topics such as Aspirational Capital, Linguistic Capital, Familial Capital, Social Capital, Navigational Capital, and Resistance Capital. The reader will be exposed to ideas that will help students make a way out of no way by working both within and against educational systems full of barriers and opportunities. Congratulations to Dr. Robinson and his colleagues as the content of this volume represents an important contribution to the extant literature. Gregory A. Diggs, Denver, Colorado.
