Training Wheels for Teachers Steve McKeehan, 2019-07-12 You got into the teaching profession to make a difference You had some exceptional teachers growing up and you thought you had what it took to make a similar impact on young people Yet from the moment you inherited your first group of students you have been struggling to keep your head above water During each period of the day while you attempt to deliver quality instruction there are a handful of loud and obnoxious students that make it their mission to disrupt your lessons and cause chaos in the classroom Because of your inability to take control others have joined in the insurrection There is no teacher 911 number to dial and you feel frustrated and helpless Your dream job has turned into a fight for survival As a new instructor you ll need the knowledge and practical experience to set up your classroom design and teach lesson plans and communicate with the parents of your students Your top priority however is to establish classroom management strategies and get students to buy into your rules and governance If you can convince them to do so you'll set the table for a successful school year. Become the leader of your classroom and help students discover the educational opportunities that await. The High-Performing School Mardale Dunsworth, Dawn Billings, 2009-06-01. Get three books in one. First learn what research has identified as the 10 indicators of high performing schools. Information Technology Usage in Metro Manila Public and Private Schools Maria Rodrigo, 2003-04-14. Both public and private schools in the Philippines are using information technology IT as a tool to improve teaching and learning. While both government and private sector initiatives indicate national commitment to IT in education there is little up to date information on how extensively the Philippines are using computers and for what purposes. The researcher's goals were to determine the extent to which Metro Manila public and private schools used IT and to determine how these results compared with analogous data on schools in other developing and developed countries. The researcher gathered data with mail in questionnaires adapted from the International Association for the Evaluation of Educational Achievement IEA onsite visits and follow up telephone interviews. The researcher also compared her results with those from IEA surveyed countries. The researcher determined that actual uses of IT did not meet schools curricular goals. Although school officials wanted IT to individualize instruction promote active learning and improve student achievement in actual practice schools used computers to teach computer literacy productivity tools and programming. In terms of infrastructure the researcher found that schools in Metro Manila had the poorest student to computer ratio in comparison to schools in IEA surveyed countries. Metro Manila students access to peripherals was also poor. Software selections were limited to productivity tools. Students in Metro Manila primary schools like their counterparts in IEA surveyed countries had limited Internet access. A comparison of results from public and private schools revealed that public and private schools shared many educational goals regarding the use of IT. However the realization of these goals was uneven. Private schools had been using computers for a greater number of years than public schools. Private schools had lower student to computer and student to printer ratios. They also had greater Internet access. Furthermore private schools tended to expose their students to computers at practically all educational levels. The study provided baseline data that was not previously available. The researcher identifies the need for similar studies with greater geographic scope or of a longitudinal nature deeper investigations of curricular gaps or policy issues and the development of instructional software for Filipino specific subject areas. Teacher Learning for Curricular & Instructional Reform in Japan Anne M. Hooghart, 2005. Qualitative Research Design and Methods Kathleen deMarrais, Kathryn Roulston, Janie Copple, 2024-01-08. Written by scholars from three generations of qualitative methodologists Qualitative Research Design and Methods An Introduction situates qualitative research within the history of the field and integrates this history within discussions of specific research designs This novel approach allows readers to come to know the genealogy of the field and how previous generations of scholars have informed what we know today as qualitative research The text reflects these more traditional as well as emerging qualitative research approaches providing a theoretically grounded approach to designing and implementing qualitative research studies While some introductory research texts focus on the specific methods of qualitative research with little attention to the role of theory this book forefronts theory in qualitative research The authors speak to students new to qualitative research with clear discussions of theory and theoretical concepts and how those notions must be considered throughout all aspects of research design implementation and representation of findings Each chapter integrates discussion of theory In addition the book highlights the role of ethics in the same way with a chapter at the beginning as well as discussions of ethics threaded throughout each of the design chapters Qualitative Research Design and Methods is THE introductory textbook for students taking introductory masters and doctoral courses in qualitative research Instructors in those classes will appreciate the straightforward language and concepts provided by the authors Perfect for courses such as Introduction to Qualitative Research and Qualitative Research Design
