History of Money

Money is anything, such as coins and paper bills, used to pay someone for goods we buy from them or for a service they do for us. Money has three main functions. First, it is used as a medium of exchange, meaning people will accept it in exchange for goods or services. Second, it can be used as a unit of accounting, which allows people to use it to keep records. Third, it has a store of value, meaning people can save it for future purchases.

From Bartering to Currency

Before people had money, they bartered, or traded, for things they needed or wanted. As civilizations grew, people began using items such as shells, salt, and cattle as the unit of exchange, or money. When trade and travel expanded beyond the local community, people sought a commodity, or common item, that everyone could accept for payment. Lumps of precious metal became a standard unit of exchange. Gold and silver were the most commonly used metals because they were durable and could be divided into smaller pieces. Coins made from precious metals were first used in Turkey, Egypt, Greece, and Rome. However, when carrying around bags of coins eventually became too burdensome, a more convenient form of money evolved. The Chinese were the first civilization to use paper money.

Currency in the New World

The first settlers in the New World brought little money with them; England prohibited the colony from producing currency (coins or paper money). This was a way to force the colonies to trade exclusively with England. Massachusetts was the first colony to make its own coins and paper money. Later, other colonial governments issued their own currency. However, the paper money was only good if there was enough gold or silver to exchange for it. Soon, the colonies had more money in circulation than they had gold or silver. This made the colonial money worthless.

Massachusetts-Bay, 1780*

The United States

During the American Revolution, the Continental Congress issued Continentials, or paper money, to finance the war. The United States government also issued paper money, nicknamed greenbacks, during the Civil War to pay debts. Both times, the paper money became worthless because the government didn't have enough gold or silver to back the new money.

To establish better control over the supply of money in circulation, Congress passed the Federal Reserve Act in 1913. The United States Treasury bought up all the paper money in circulation. Federal Reserve Banks were established under the new law. They were the only banks authorized to issue paper money. Today, Federal Reserve notes, our current paper money, are printed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. These notes are legal tender, or the official money used for payment, for all debts in the United States.
