Soorholtz, 2016-12-02 All marketing actions whether preceded by formal or informal decision making processes are based on what philosophers call arguments An argument is a set of related statements comprising premises and a conclusion Ideally premises give an audience good reasons for accepting your argument's conclusion In marketing these conclusions are normative decisions about what an organization should do for example raise prices by five percent add a new sales territory or perhaps change the marketing communications mix to invest more in digital and less in print The premises are the rationale behind why the organization should take such actions Critical Thinking for Marketers Learn How to Think Not What to Think provides information and guidelines on not only how to develop good arguments but also what it means to develop a good argument For example the book describes two basic kinds of arguments deductive and inductive and how to examine whether such arguments are good or not To do this the book explains 60 logical fallacies or errors in reasoning that marketers should avoid Additionally the authors several Think Better discussions examine how fields such as philosophy behavioral economics and marketing theory have informed the principles of critical thinking in marketing Critical

Thinking for Marketers, Volume II David Dwight, Terry Grapentine, David Soorholtz, 2016-12-02 This second volume of

Critical Thinking for Marketers expands your background knowledge of other areas of critical thinking that are making major contributions to both marketing as a social science and marketing as an applied science Section I Think Better provides introductory discussions of marketing as a science the difference between correlation and causation the meaning of what a concept is and why it is critical for marketers to develop good concept definitions e g What is customer satisfaction why the 18th century Scottish philosopher David Hume is relevant to marketers today and the impact that behavioral economics is having on how marketers do their job Section II Cognitive Biases and Their Importance talks about recent discoveries in cognitive psychology and neuroscience that have relevance to marketers You ll learn that marketers need to be aware of their own cognitive biases and irrational thinking processes which often lead to making bad decisions and that the retail and business customers we market to are not as rational as we may think and hope they are Finally Section III Conclusions draws on both Volumes I and II to summarize the book s primary messages with helpful hints on applying your new tools and making better marketing decisions

Regulation of television advertising Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: Select Committee on Communications,2011-02-17 This report from the Select Committee on Communications calls for a reduction in the time allowed for advertisements on commercial broadcasting channels Existing regulation of the market is no longer relevant in the digital age and doesn t serve the best interests of viewers The Code on Scheduling of Television Advertising should be harmonised to level the playing field between public service and commercial broadcasters when Digital Switchover happens in 2012 It is the Committee s view that a reduction in the quantity of advertising airtime that broadcasters are allowed to sell would greatly improve the viewer experience and would be fairer to the public service broadcasters ITV 1 Channel 4 and Channel 5 who are limited more than all other commercial channels at the moment All channels should be allowed an average of 7 minutes per hour appropriate peak time maximum to be determined after research from Ofcom The Committee has also looked at specific regulations which affect ITV 1 known as the Contract Rights Renewal undertakings These undertakings should be removed as long as they are replaced with binding undertakings from ITV plc to invest an appropriate proportion of any additional revenues from advertising in creating UK originated programming and training The Committee is calling on ITV s bosses to deliver on the commitments they have made to the Committee to increase its investment on quality UK originated programming in return for the removal of CRR and also to invest in training within the industry Product Distribution and Marketing ,2005
