

Gender: Chapter 4, Performances

Men and women seem to be different in their choices

- typically matches stereotypical expectations
- women are four times as likely to major in education
- men are five times more likely to major in engineering
- women are more likely to dance/sing

Choices range from obvious to subtle

- gender differences in how people look at fingernails
- how we hold a cigarette
- how we hold hands
- these are consequences of social interaction instead of biological/psychological

We will constantly negotiate gender with people throughout life

How to Do Gender

- Doing Gender: the ways in which we actively obey and break gender rules
- Gender Rules: instructions for how to appear and behave as a man or a woman
  - social construction
  - most gender rules are simple cultural agreements
    - back slap "man hug" or butt slap in football
    - other cultures, straight men exchange kisses or hold hands
    - men wear kilts in Scotland
    - men in Arab countries wear robes or "thwabs" (head covers)
    - Belgium: pink is not gender neutral, it is for boys
    - floral patterns can represent masculinity in Japan
  - what men and women do not wear is also dictated by gender rules
    - breastfeeding in public/showing breasts
    - some places in Europe, women can sunbathe topless
    - Europeans describe Americans as irrationally prudish
- we are good at adjusting to culture shock because we get practice throughout our lives
