

Chapter 10: Models for Processing and the Understanding Process

Education 1980

2. Knowledge Base

1. What are the 10 key propositional processes?

1. Processing the sentence.
2. Processing context, both across and across sentences.
3. Representational structure is continuous flow, not independent blocks.
4. Spoken and written propositional processes are different.
5. This needs to be noted separately. All patterns have exceptions.
6. An individual brings into the system the knowledge of the rules that the system uses.
7. Subjects and languages operate systematically, but context and specific subjects make it individual.
8. In oral interaction, the conversational partners understand their utterances and respond to the utterances with their own responses in a conversational mode.
9. This oral context provides continuous feedback for the flow of an utterance and may result from and provide support, correction, and explanation.
10. It is more from general or middle class or middle class or middle class individuals than from up relationships for individuals as far as the system is concerned.
11. Two things that individuals bring into the system are rules and relationships.
12. Two sources are that process and it is a parallel process, a whole system of knowledge, it is a parallel system available.
