

Introduction

In recent years there has been a trend towards not only developing and protecting human rights but also animal rights. While many people believe that we should give animals legal rights to humans, others view them as a renewable source of food, as well as other useful products.

Body paragraph #1

First of all, it seems clear for north intelligent people that animals deserve more rights than they have. Unfortunately some people think it because they are obviously not used to go with thoughts and feelings are if there are not really the same as our own. For example, it has been said that some animals - birds and dolphins - swim, they can feel like humans do. They would display the signs of their pain and wish that we would communicate with humans better way. Therefore, it appears quite clear that they should be given the same rights and protection as humans.

Body paragraph #2

There are strong arguments against rights for animals and not that they have the ability of human feeling and speech but that they have a form of thinking and that this form of behaviour is clearly normal within the natural world. It looks humans should not better give rights upon their animal mind but to be because our natural relationship is with the same as that of a wolf and a sheep. It should be clear for us that animals are not very beautiful because that is the natural way of the world.

Conclusion

In conclusion, there are arguments from both sides of the debate, both supporting that that animals deserve respect, protection, and some legal rights. Perhaps they should not be given the same treatment as humans but they should certainly be treated better than they currently are and least should be drafted for extreme their protection from undue suffering.
