New Challenges to Food Security Ian Christoplos, Adam Pain, 2014-11-13 Food security is high on the political agenda Fears about societal insecurity due to food price increases and hunger grave scenarios regarding the effects of climate change and general uncertainty about the impacts of investments in biofuels and so call land grabbing on food prices and availability have meant that food security is now recognised as being a multifaceted challenge This book is unique in that it will bring together analyses of these different factors that impact on food security This volume will describe a range of different perspectives on food security with an emphasis on the various meanings that are applied to food security crisis The challenges to be reviewed include market volatility climate change and state fragility Analyses of responses to food security crises and risk will cover rural and urban contexts arenas of national policy formation and global food regimes and investment in land and productive technologies This book is unique in two respects First it takes a step back from the normative literature focused on specific factors of for example climate change agricultural production or market volatility to look instead at the dynamic interplay between these new challenges It helps readers to understand that food security is not one discourse but is rather related to how these different factors generate multiple risks and opportunities Second through the case studies the book particularly emphasises how these factors come together at local levels as farmers entrepreneurs consumers local government officials and others are making key decisions about what will be done to address food security and whose food security will be given priority The book will explore how food production and consumption is embedded in powerful political and market forces and how these influence local actions
