This book examines Arab approaches to mediation negotiation and settlement of political disputes This book proposes that two clusters of independent variables are potentially responsible for the distinctive nature of Arab conflict resolution Firstly those linked with Arab political regimes and imperatives and secondly those linked with Arab and or Islamic culture The text also focuses on the Arab League and its history of involvement in crisis and conflict situations along with the roles of individual leaders emissaries and extra regional actors such as IGOs Inter Governmental Organisations in undertaking mediation initiatives IGO and Arab League activity has taken on new importance since the various intervention attempts in connection with the Arab Spring since 2011. During the negotiation process, most Arab regimes tend to view conflicts within a broad historical context and Islamic culture prioritises the cohesion of the community and internal stability of the state over individual autonomy. This has created an authoritarian style of leadership and in practice, leaders in the Middle East have had near absolute authority in the decision making process, a fact which will have a lot of weight in conflict management and whether peace will endure for a long period of time. This book is unique in studying these clusters through comparative systematic case study analysis of events prior to and subsequent to the Arab Spring, augmented by a quantitative analysis of sample data on Arab disputes compiled from a larger and newly augmented study comprising the years 1945-2000. Complementary data from the Uppsala Conflict Data Program's UCDP data base of armed conflicts since 1975 is also utilized. This book will be of much interest to students of conflict resolution, peace and conflict studies, Middle Eastern politics and IR in general. Alexander von Humboldt Gregor C. Falk, Manfred R. Strecker, Simon Schneider, 2022-07-23. This book aims to view and to understand Alexander von Humboldt from different perspectives and in varying disciplinary contexts. His contributions addressed numerous topics in the earth but also life sciences, spanning from geo botany, climatology, paleontology, oceanography, mineralogy, resources and hydrogeology to links between the environmental impact of humans, erosion and climate change. From the very beginning, he paved the way for a modern integrated earth system science approach to decipher, characterize and model the different forcing factors and their feedback mechanisms. It becomes obvious that Humboldt's holistic approach is far beyond simple description and empiric data collection. As documented and analyzed in the different texts of this volume, he combines observation and analysis with emotions and subjective perceptions in a very affectionate way. However, this publication does not intend to add another encyclopedic text compilation but to observe and critically analyze this unique personality's relevance in a modern context, particularly in discussing environmental and social key issues in the twenty-first century. Communicated Stereotypes at Work Yifeng Hu, Anastacia Kurylo, 2024-05-15. In Communicated Stereotypes at Work, the editors and contributors posit that stereotypes communicated in the workplace remain a pervasive issue due to the dichotomy between the discriminatory and functional roles that these stereotypes can play in a range of professional settings. Contributors demonstrate that while the use of stereotypes in the workplace is distasteful and exclusionary, communicating these stereotypes can also appear on the surface to provide a pathway toward bonding with others, giving advice and reducing uncertainty. The result of this dichotomy is that those who communicate stereotypes in the workplace may not view this communication from themselves or others as being problematic. With an emphasis on qualitative methods and analyses, contributors deconstruct stereotypes by exploring the theoretical, empirical and pragmatic roles they play in communication. In doing so, authors expose the underpinnings of stereotypes and why they are communicated, focus on the role all of us play in perpetuating stereotypes and suggest alternative modes of productive discourse. Scholars of interpersonal and organizational communication cultural studies and sociology as well as practitioners of various professions will find this book particularly useful
