The anti-lock brake system (ABS) modulates brake pressure on each wheel independently to maintain vehicle stability during braking. The ABS continually monitors the rotational velocity of each wheel anytime the ignition switch is in the RUN position and determines if a tire is losing traction when the brakes are applied. Only then does the ABS intervene to modulate the brake pressure to the necessary wheel. The modulation continues until the wheel rotates freely. The brake pressure is then restored and the modulate/restore cycle is repeated whenever loss of traction is detected. This cycle occurs at a rate of several times per second.

The ABS module is capable of detecting the following system conditions:

- Hydraulic valve failure
- Wheel speed sensor failure
- ABS power relay short circuit
- Interconnect failures to the ABS sensors, power and ground to the ABS module
- Over/under voltage conditions

The ABS provides self-diagnostics and displays failure messages, via the ABS indicator, in the instrument cluster. Failure of the ABS module, for whatever reason, will not compromise the normal operation of the brake system.

Dynamic stability control (DSC) maximizes vehicle stability under all conditions. The DSC system compares actual vehicle course to that intended by the driver. If the intended course differs from the actual course due to over steer or under steer conditions, the DSC system will brake individual wheels and reduce engine torque to bring the vehicle back to the driver's intended direction. By using a combined yaw rate sensor and lateral accelerometer, the vehicles rotational motion around its vertical axis and centrifugal forces generated while cornering are calculated to determine the vehicle's actual behavior. Using additional sensors for detecting steering wheel position and road wheel speed
