Collaborative Learning Through Computer Conferencing Anthony R. Kaye,2012-12-06 The idea for the Workshop on which this book is based arose from discussions which we had when we both attended an earlier and more broadly based NATO Advanced Research Workshop on Computer Supported Collaborative Learning directed by Claire O Malley in Maratea Italy in 1989 We both felt that it would be interesting to organise a second Workshop in this area but specifically concerned with the use of computers and networking telematics as communication tools for collaborative learning outside the formal school setting We were particularly interested in examining the ways in which computer conferencing can be used for collaboration and group learning in the contexts of distance education adult learning professional training and organisational networking And we wanted to ensure that we included in the scope of the Workshop situations in which learning is a primary explicit goal e g an online training programme as well as situations where learning occurs as a secondary even incidental outcome of a collaborative activity whose explicit purpose might be different e g the activities of networked product teams or task groups Another goal was to try to bring together for a few days people with three different perspectives on the use of computer conferencing users researchers and software designers We hoped that if we could assemble a group of people from these three different constituencies we might collectively be able to make a small contribution to real progress in the field

Social Psychiatry Rakesh K Chadda,Vinay Kumar,Siddharth Sarkar,2023-12-29 Reshaping the University David

Palfreyman,Ted Tapper,2014 The global economic crisis has required governments across the globe to reconsider their spending priorities It is within this demanding economic context that higher education systems have been steadily restructured with in many ways the English model in the vanguard of change This book focuses in particular upon the policy of removing almost entirely public support for the payment of student fees This has emerged from a steady process of change which has broad political support and is underwritten by the idea that higher education is now seen more as a private than a public good. As this shift has occurred, not a new innovation but rather a return to what once prevailed as more of a market in English higher education, so the relationship between government and the higher education has evolved with the latter now attempting to steer the development of the system through a state regulated market. The book has a strong comparative dimension that draws upon US higher education to illustrate both the possible advantages and potential hazards to the marketization strategy. It concludes that any such strategy needs to be accompanied by state regulation if it is to function effectively, particularly to stimulate price competition, encourage innovation from new entrants and provide consumer protection for students paying high fees. The European Defence Agency Nikolaos Karampekios, Iraklis Oikonomou, 2015-04-10

This volume provides a comprehensive understanding of the European Defence Agency (EDA), the leading EU armaments policy institution. Despite its critical role in European strategic and military affairs as the key hub of European policy making in the field of armaments, the Agency has hitherto received very little attention by the academic and research community around Europe. To fill this gap in the literature, the book covers a multitude of inter-related themes and topics. Not only does it provide a detailed analysis and assessment of the Agency's record as the first institution dealing solely with EU armaments policy, but it also links these findings to international relations and European integration theory. Thematically, the contributions go beyond the mere description of achievements, gaps and risks, elaborating on novel themes such as space offsets, pooling and sharing, and transatlantic armaments relations. The book combines an interdisciplinary approach to the study of European defence with theoretical and ontological pluralism and seeks to unveil the strategic, industrial, institutional and ideational sources of armaments collaboration and capability development under the aegis of the EDA. The multi-faceted orientation of the book will be of much interest to students of European security, EU institutions, defence studies, arms control and international relations in general. Lifelong Learning Jim Crowther, Peter Sutherland, 2008-03-25

Lifelong learning has developed enormously as a distinct area of study within education in recent years, not least because numerous governments and educational strategists have become very vocal supporters of new ways of learning throughout all stages of life. This guide to the topic brings together new writing from some of the leading thinkers in the field to offer a broad-ranging and detailed snapshot of the position to date. The book provides a critical summary of current developments in understanding adult learning and the social context in which they are located. This provides a background for the framing of issues and the problems that emerge in institutional and non-formal contexts of lifelong learning. Students undertaking courses of study in this area, as well as a wide range of undergraduate and postgraduate students in a variety of professional areas, will find the material essential reading. The Power of Rankings in Economics and Research Organizations Stephan Pühringer, Jens Maesse, Thierry Rossier, 2025-06-06

Discourses around research excellence and quality are predominant within the economic sciences, with various forms of ranking playing a central role.

They make excellence in research and teaching visible but they also create hierarchical orders between researchers institutions publication outlets and countries The authors of this volume analyse the role of rankings in shaping and transforming economics from different theoretical methodological and disciplinary perspectives The various contributions explore the specific situation in different countries as well as global developments within economics and beyond In addition the book contributes to an overall debate about the role and function of rankings in academia The analysis focuses on four aspects rankings and social hierarchies rankings and paradigmatic hegemonies rankings and regulations policies as well as rankings and critique alternatives The book addresses scholars in economic sociology economics higher education and science studies The Open Access version of this book available at www.taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license
