2.1. VEHICLE EXTERIOR

The CE 200 and CE 300 bus bodies are designed as a unit, which means that every structural part is tied to other structural parts to form a whole. This concept is known as unit body construction. The strength and durability of the bus body depends on the structural integrity of the unit. If any structural part is damaged or removed, the entire bus body integrity is weakened. Therefore, a damaged structural part must be carefully repaired or replaced exactly as it was originally so body strength can be restored. All units are to meet all applicable F.M.V.S.S. requirements as of the date of manufacture. The floor of the bus is designed as the foundation upon which the rest of the body is constructed. If the floor is ever twisted or damaged (other than superficial or cosmetic damage) it cannot be repaired, and the bus must be removed from service.

2.2. REPORTING SAFETY DEFECTS

If you believe that your vehicle has a defect that could cause an accident, injury or death, you should immediately inform the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), in addition to notifying International Truck and Engine Corporation.

If NHTSA receives similar complaints, it may open an investigation, and if it finds that a safety defect exists in a group of vehicles, it may order a recall and remedy campaign. However, NHTSA cannot get involved in individual problems between you, your dealer or International Truck and Engine Corporation.
