SERVICE DATA NO. 422

JAGUAR 3.4'S' and 3.8'S'

Manufacturers: Jaguar Cars, Ltd., Coventry

All rights reserved. This Service Data Sheet is compiled by the technical staff of Motor Trader, from information made available by the vehicle manufacturers and from our own experience. It is the copyright of this journal, and may not be reproduced, in whole or in part, without permission. While care is taken to ensure accuracy we do not accept responsibility for errors or omissions.

DISTINGUISHING FEATURES Frontal styling is somewhat similar to the Mk. 2 cars, but headlamps are recessed and faired into wings. Direction flashers are at lower wing extremities. Wrap around bumpers are fitted front and rear.

LATEST in the range, the "S"-type car was introduced at the time of the Earl's Court Motor Show last year. This model is an addition to the range, and its size rating comes between the Mk. 2 and the Mk. X. It is conceived as a four-door, four/five seater, and the body is designed on the integral principle. Certain of the mechanical components will be seen to have similarity to those used on other cars in the range, but as might be expected, differ in the specific applications to this car.

Motive power is provided by the well-known six-cylinder overhead camshaft engine. In the case of this car, it is available in either 3.4- or 3.8-litre capacity, and there is a choice of compression ratios, with 8:1 quoted as standard for each engine size. In this state, the power output from the 3.4-litre engine is 210 b.h.p. at 5,500 r.p.m., and from the 3.8-litre, 230 b.h.p. at the same engine speed. Alternative compression ratios are available for use in countries where fuel requirements make this necessary.

On the transmission side, both manual and fully automatic transmissions are available. When manual transmission is specified, overdrive is optional and when fitted operates on top gear only; synchromesh within the gearbox is fixed to the upper three ratios. The automatic transmission is similar to that which has been described in previous Service Supplement sheets, featuring this Borg-Warner unit. The Supplement numbers are as follows: 260/C19, 352/C25, 344/C39, 352/C63, 354/C63 and 356/C63 and readers are referred to these publications for full constructional details and repair procedures. The rear axle is the Salisbury 4HU unit and when fitted to the 3.4-litre car may be fixed with the Thoron Power-Lok differential. This option for the 3.4-litre car is standard on the larger engine (3.8-litre) car.

Suspension is independent front and rear, and drive to the rear road wheels is taken through short universally jointed shafts from either side of the truncated axle shafts to each wheel assembly. Each of these axle output shafts provides the mounting for the discs of inboard rear brakes. The front suspension, of the coil spring and wishbone link pattern, incorporates telescopic hydraulic shock absorbers, as does the rear suspension.

Identification of vehicles varies from previous Jaguar practice. Cars are identified by chassis and engine numbers and the major components have their own numbers. Starting serials are 1B1001 for 3.4-litre cars and 1B5001 for the 3.8-litre models, both r.h.d. The chassis number is to be found stamped in the bonnet catch channel forward of the radiator header tank, a suffix "DN" indicated that an overdrive unit is fitted. The engine number is stamped on the right hand side of the cylinder block, above the oil filter and to the front of the cylinder head casting, /7, /8, or /9 following the number denotes the compression ratio. All these numbers, together with other numerical identification of the car, are to be found stamped on a plate which is attached to the left-hand front wing valance. On power-assisted steering models, this plate is found at the centre of the bulkhead. It is essential that all these numbers and letters are quoted when referring to the manufacturers, or when ordering spare parts.

Some special tools are required for service work, and those considered essential are listed in the tabular data in this article.

Threads and hexagons are, in the main, of the S.A.E. pattern and form, but certain threaded parts on proprietary components will be found to be B.S.F.
