Olfaction in vector-host interactions Willem Takken, Bart G.J. Knols, 2023-09-04 This is a multi authored book with a focus on the role of olfaction the sense of smell in the multitude of interactions between arthropods and their blood hosts Blood feeding arthropods mostly insects ticks and mites depend on a vertebrate host for survival and reproduction Their evolutionary success depends on how efficiently they can detect the presence of a host and actively locate it to obtain a blood meal This is the domain of olfaction which is perhaps the most important mode of signal exchange between hosts and blood feeding arthropods that visit them Important human and animal diseases like malaria dengue West Nile virus bluetongue and trypanosomiasis are transmitted between humans and or animals as a direct outcome of olfactory responses mediated by host odours Increased understanding of olfaction and how this governs interactions between arthropods and blood hosts will enable the development of novel strategies to disrupt this behaviour For example many species of tsetse fly respond over distance to simple blends of synthetic odours Combined with traps or insecticide treated targets such odour baited devices can effectively suppress fly populations and thus transmission of sleeping sickness Such systems still need to be developed for disease vectoring mosquitoes flies and ticks necessitating further knowledge on the chemical basis of interactions with their vertebrate hosts In 18 peer reviewed chapters recognized experts provide a state of the art overview of olfaction in vector
