

Evaluate Information/Draw Conclusions

When you research information, you need to evaluate it to see if the information is accurate and up-to-date. You also need to make sure it meets the needs of your project. For example, a newspaper article might be up-to-date, but it may not have the information you need. When you find information you can use, you need to draw conclusions about it by deciding for yourself what the information means.

Directions: Read this encyclopedia entry about cattle. Use the information to answer the questions that follow.

Cattle: The Global Picture

In 1995, there were about 1.1 billion beef and dairy cattle in the world. More than one-third of the cattle are raised in Asia. Many millions more are raised in South America. India has more cattle than any other country in the world, but the demand for meat in India is low because many people there believe that the cow is a sacred animal.

A century ago, there were 40 million cattle in the United States. In the early 1990s, the U.S. Department of Agriculture estimated that this number had grown to close to 100 million. During this same time period, each American ate about 67 pounds of beef a year and drank about 100 quarts of milk.
