Not a Pretty Picture Robert Mullan, 2022-02-23 Originally published in 1996 ethnic minorities in the UK made up over 5% of the population yet were hardly represented in the hundreds of hours of terrestrial broadcast television each week The blatant racism of The Black and White Minstrel Show was over but more subtle forms of racism were piped into our living rooms in an endless stream of white dominated programming Comedies and soaps presented non whites as a sort of joke humanity stereotypical simple and amusingly childish Serious programmes swelled on the negative aspects of ethnicity race as a problem cultural clashes and language barriers Above all not white equals not normal For many years critics of popular television argued that such imbalance was harmful The lack of positive non white TV role models for children to identify with was leading to growing alienation and disaffection Ethnic minorities increasingly defined themselves in opposition to white institutions They were turning towards separate channels narrow casting provided to meet their own TV needs Based on both extensive survey research and interviews with actual viewers Not a Pretty Picture investigates the whole issue of TV and ethnic minority viewers at the time their viewing choices their criticisms their feeling about the way they are portrayed The conclusions are damning for most of Britain s ethnic minority communities TV was a white medium predominantly controlled by whites portraying white culture and denying non whites a voice Not a Pretty Picture however provides a voice for these views and a valuable insight into the way ethnic minorities see TV Today it can be read in its historical context to see how far we have come as well as what still needs to be done From Cubicle Slave to the Next Internet Millionaire Jaime
