Chemistry of Aquatic Systems: Local and Global Perspectives Giovanni Bidoglio, Werner Stumm, 2013-11-08 Aquatic systems play a salient role in the complex processes of energy and matter exchange between the geosphere and the atmosphere For example reactions taking place in cloud water droplets can substantially alter the atmospheric budget and chemistry of trace gases pollution induced weathering reactions at water soil interfaces can affect the availability of nutrients and increase the concentration of potentially toxic metals in groundwaters Moreover the inextricable links between the water cycle the geosphere and the atmosphere ensure that apparently localized environmental problems have increasingly impacts in other parts of the world To identify local to global scale variables associated with environmental changes a focus must be placed on the recognition of processes rather than a continued reliance on monitoring state variables However in heterogeneous aquatic systems small scale aspects of a process under observation may not be summed directly to obtain regional estimates because of process nonlinearities with change in scale To understand this the integrated use of measurements across a range of scales is required

Classroom Dynamics Ellen B. Mandinach, Hugh F. Cline, 2013-12-16 This book reports an attempt to introduce change in schools using a computer based curriculum innovation for teaching higher order thinking skills to middle and high school students One of the volume s themes is the extraordinary complexity and difficulty of facilitating such change in schools A corollary of that theme is the fact that patience must be an integral part of the strategy when promoting or studying change in schools In reporting the activities during the early years of a technological innovation and research project in which the emphasis thus far has been primarily on establishing the change this book focuses on describing the move to a technology based learning environment As such it details an ongoing process a fascinating process and one that is likely to be repeated in the near future in countless schools throughout the nation
