number of objects in a set an ability that underpins learning arithmetic and clearly differentiates dyscalculia from other forms of early maths learning difficulties Butterworth uniquely links research to pedagogical practice to explain how science can be used for the identification of dyscalculia and for the development of strategies to best help affected learners acquire arithmetical competence The text provides robust interventions that focus on helping pupils to strengthen their ability to process numerosities and link them to the familiar number symbols counting words and digits It shows that science has clear and specific implications both for assessment and intervention A landmark publication for the dyscalculia community
