

Glossary: Physics Challenges

Phase 1a: Energy Bits - classroom organization lesson

- All students participate in a brief discussion about energy bits.
Students are to be as specific as possible.
- The students practice reflecting on their own personal energy bits.
Students are to be as descriptive as possible.
- The students practice reflecting on what they think is the best way to teach energy bits.
Students are to be as specific as possible.
- The students practice reflecting on what they think their energy bits are similar to others.
Students are to be as descriptive as possible.

Phase 1b: Energy Bit Exchange Discussion

Students will begin to compare and contrast their energy bits with one another.

- Students will have a partner group discuss their similarities and differences.
- Students will compare their energy bits to those of their partners.
Students are to be as descriptive as possible.
- Students will compare their energy bits to those of their teacher.
Students are to be as descriptive as possible.
- And finally, the students will compare their energy bits to those of other groups.
Students are to be as descriptive as possible.
- Students will compare their energy bits to those of their teacher's energy bits.
Students are to be as descriptive as possible.

Once these discussions have been completed, the students will begin the "Energy Bits Challenge". This challenge requires students to use their energy bits to complete a task.

Students will:

• Create a poster or drawing of their energy bits and how they can be used to complete the task.
