goes by quick One minute you re anxious to grow up the next you re stressed at how many responsibilities you have Life is always shifting Right before your eyes your body personality and thoughts change on a daily basis This holds true for both teenagers and adults Navigating the world for all of us is perplexing terrifying and yet exciting all at the same time Though it might seem the world can be bleak at times there will always be things to amaze us and serve as reminders of the wonders there are to explore In today s world pressures exist all around for children and teens The looming college life problems at home and demands at school can leave teens confused as to who they are and how they should act One minute you re stressing about getting a good grade on a test and the next you re panicked over wearing the right outfit to impress your crush Getting a good grade can feel as important as who you re going to kiss for the first time While trying to fight your way through the jungle of junior high and high school there are many decisions to make Sometimes it feels like you re playing a video game and you have to choose between option A or B both of which have unpredictable consequences and benefits Depending on the situation teachers and parents can turn from a comfort to the source of our anger Our best friends can be the ones we re envious of the most and any sort of romantic relationship is full of complications During this entire time our minds and bodies are transforming from the children we used to be into the adults we re going to become Throughout this book there are two main important points that will be expanded on 1 How to be cool 2 How to do this while staying out of trouble Spreading gossip lying and getting involved in other people s business can be hard to resist especially as a pre teen trying to traverse this crazy world The problem many teens struggle with is they simply don t know how to do this It feels natural to want to jump in with the gossip because it s easy and everyone else is doing it It s a way to follow the crowd and know exactly what s next Or going against the norms can also give you an exact formula for how to act dress and think However getting too caught up with labels or the thoughts and opinions of other people can be the very thing that keeps you from success as a teen By following these five steps you can define your voice while also discovering who you are for lifetime success 1 Build your confidence 2 Manage your emotions 3 Start to know your personality 4 Manage anxiety 5 Show that off Later in the book I ll also cover the things that will never be cool under any circumstances But the coolest thing you could ever do is allow your true self to show and embrace who this individual is Only by practicing these steps as both a teen and adult will you be able to flourish
