Intellectual Property in Asia Paul Goldstein, Joseph Straus, 2009-01-07 Introduction Intellectual property rights foster innovation But if as it surely does intellectual property means not just intellectual property rules the law of patents copyrights trademarks designs trade secrets and unfair competition but also intellectual property institutions the courts police regulatory agencies and collecting soc ties that administer these rules what are the respective roles of intellectual property rules and institutions in fostering creativity And to what extent do forces outside intellectual property rules and institutions economics culture politics history also contribute to innovation Is it possible that these other factors so overwhelm the impact of intellectual property regimes that it is futile to expect adjustments in intellectual property rules and institutions to alter patterns of inno tion and ultimately economic development It was to address these questions in the most dynamic region of the world today Asia that we invited leading country experts to contribute studies that not only summarize the current condition of intellectual property regimes in countries ranging in economic size from Cambodia to Japan and in population from Laos to China but that also describe the historical sources of these laws and institutions the realities of intellectual property enforcement in the marketplace and the political economic educational and scientific infrastructures that sustain and direct investment in innovative activity A
