Toward Translingual Realities in Composition
 Nancy Bou Ayash, 2019-09-26 Toward Translingual Realities in Composition is a multiyear critical ethnographic study of first year writing programs in Lebanon and Washington State a country where English is not the sole language of instruction and a state in which English is entirely dominant to examine the multiple and often contradictory nature of forces and manifestations of language ideologies. The book is a practical, useful way of seriously engaging with alternative ways of thinking, doing, and learning academic English literacies. Translingualism work has concentrated on critiquing monolingual and multilingual notions of language, but it is only beginning to examine translingual enactments in writing programs and classrooms. Focusing on language representations and practices at both the macro and micro levels, author Nancy Bou Ayash places the study and teaching of university-level writing in the context of the globalization and pluralization of Englishes and other languages. Individual chapters feature various studies that Bou Ayash brings together to address how students act as agents in marshaling their language practices and resources and shows a deliberate translingual intervention that complicates and enriches students' assumptions about language and writing. Her findings about writing programs, instructors, and students are detailed, multidimensional, and complex. A substantial contribution to growing translingual scholarship in the field of composition studies. Toward Translingual Realities in Composition offers insights into how writing teacher scholars and writing program administrators can more productively intervene in local postmonolingual tensions and contradictions at the level of language representations and practices through actively and persistently reworking the design and enactment of their curricula, pedagogies, assessments, teacher training programs, and campus-wide partnerships.

Organizational Change and Global Standardization David M. Boje, 2015-05-15. Organizational Change and Global Standardization Solutions to Standards and Norms Overwhelming Organizations takes an organizational change approach to the overflow of standards and norms, looking at how to deal effectively and ethically with four kinds of standards and norms businesses face when they go global: 1. accounting/finance, 2. international/world trade, 3. social, and 4. safety/quality/environment. It is part of a larger problem faced by not only business but every sort of organization: how to live with the epidemic of standards and norms, often in conflict, many just unnecessary, and a few that are quite helpful and important. There are good reasons to have International Standards Organization (ISO), International Labor Organization (ILO), World Trade Organization (WTO), North Atlantic Treaty Association (NAFTA), International Accounting Standards Boards (IASB), International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS), and many more standard-setting organizations issuing, auditing, proposing codes of ethics, and certifying standards and norms. However, there are important, poorly understood organizational change consequences to the contagion of standards and norms. This volume brings together a unique group of authors who are working on a pragmatic way for organizations to deal with an overflow of standards and norms that are often at best ambiguous or simply created to produce more work for a burgeoning standards-setting industry. The aim of Organizational Change and Global Standardization is to stimulate a critical analysis within the framework of an analytical and pragmatic approach to an overwhelming bureaucratization of the managed and organized global activities.
