Elements & Macromolecules in Organisms

Most common elements in living things are carbon, hydrogen, nitrogen, and oxygen. These four elements constitute about 95% of your body weight. All compounds can be classified in two broad categories --- organic and inorganic compounds. Organic compounds are made primarily of carbon. Carbon has four outer electrons and can form four bonds. Carbon can form single bonds with another atom and also bond to other carbon molecules forming double, triple, or quadruple bonds. Organic compounds also contain hydrogen. Since hydrogen has only one electron, it can form only single bonds.

Each small organic molecule can be a unit of a large organic molecule called a macromolecule. There are four classes of macromolecules (polysaccharides or carbohydrates, triglycerides or lipids, polypeptides or proteins, and nucleic acids such as DNA & RNA). Carbohydrates and lipids are made of only carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen (CHO). Proteins are made of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, and nitrogen (CHON). Nucleic acids such as DNA and RNA contain carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, and phosphorus (CHON P).

Use the drawing of the amino acid on this worksheet (look ahead to another page for this sketch and remember that the NUMBER OF LINES from a single atom is their NUMBER OF BONDS) to determine the number of bonds formed by:

_____ Oxygen _____ Hydrogen _____ Nitrogen

The body also needs trace amounts of other elements such as calcium, potassium, and sulfur for proper functioning of muscles, nerves, etc.

Questions:

1. Name the 4 main elements that make up 95% of an organism.
2. Name the 4 types of bonds carbon can form.
3. What are macromolecules?
4. Name the 4 classes of macromolecules.
5. Give 2 examples of nucleic acids. _____
6. What elements make up carbohydrates & lipids (symbols)? _____
7. Name 3 elements your body needs trace amounts of for proper functioning.

An Introduction to Macromolecules L. Mandelkern, 2012-12-06 The reception of the original volume by students pedagogues and reviewers has been most gratifying It appears to have both satisfied a need and served a useful educational purpose Hence some ten years later it has been deemed advisable to bring it up to date if only in a slightly expanded form The purpose for writing this book and its level remain the same Many new polymers have been synthesized in the last decade that have found meaningful and novel uses Examples of these applications are included in this new edition Major advances have also been made in biophysics and in molecular biology as well as in our understanding of natural processes on a molecular level Foremost among these has been the development of recombinant DNA technology With it has come the potential for large scale synthesis of hormones and proteins These new developments have also been incorporated into the present volume It is my hope that this new edition will still have a widespread appeal to students in all of the natural sciences whatever their major interest It should also be of use and interest to those starting industrial or academic careers who have not had an extensive background in macromolecular science

Macromolecules: Structure and Function Finn Wold, 1971 In this book we discuss the status of the structure function analysis of biological macromolecules and macromolecular complexes The ultimate goal of the analysis must be to explain all the functional properties of the molecules in question in terms of their completely defined three dimensional structure and the analysis thus contains three separate components the determination of structure the determination and quantitation of function and final correlation of this information into the structure function model The first component the structural analysis is reviewed only briefly and this book therefore leans heavily on Barker's and Van Holde's books in this series for proper background and documentation for this component. The second component, the analysis of functional properties, is given broader consideration in Chapters 1, 2, 5, and 9, but the main emphasis has been the step-by-step development of the structure-function models. It is hoped that this approach will clearly illustrate the typical progression of scientific model building from the first clear definition of the problem and the statement of the hypothesis through ever-increasing refinements of experimental tests toward the final answer. It is also hoped that the statements of philosophy, principles, and scientific method that are the bases for this approach are of broad enough validity to survive even after its models have become obsolete. With this approach, it is essential to inform the reader in unequivocal terms that this book is not a summary of final conclusions and complete stories which can be submitted to memory. Each system discussed should be considered very critically, and the models should be evaluated in terms of the available evidence. The only facts are the experimental data; the interpretation of this data into models is only convincing to the extent that it makes logical sense to the individual examining it. Since both space and common sense prohibit a continuous reiteration of this statement throughout the book, be prepared to encounter some models and hypotheses which are based on sound experimental evidence as well as some which have no experimental basis at all. In neither case are they facts, but in either case they represent ideas which can be subjected to further experimental tests. If the book helps to sharpen this critical evaluation of both ideas and the experimental test of the hypotheses, one of its major purposes has been fulfilled.
