Persky, Brent A. Sandene, Janice M. Askew, 1998 The last several years have seen a growing resolve among educators and policymakers to assure the place of a solid arts education in U S schools In 1997 the National Assessment of Educational Progress NAEP conducted a national assessment in the arts at grade 8 The assessment included the areas of music theater and visual arts For each of these arts areas this Report Card describes the achievement of eighth graders within the general population and in various subgroups Taken with the information provided about instructional and institutional variables this report gives a context for evaluating the status of students learning in the arts The arts assessment was designed to measure the content specifications described in the arts framework for NAEP The arts have a unique capacity to integrate intellect emotions and physical skills in the creation of meaning Meaningful arts assessments need to be built around three arts processes creating performing and responding To capture these processes the arts assessment exercises included authentic tasks that assessed students knowledge and skills and constructed response and multiple choice questions that explore students abilities to describe analyze interpret and evaluate works of art in written form Data are reported in overall summaries for creating performing and responding in terms of student and school reported background variables Student results for theater are discussed in terms of teacher reported background variables as well The major findings of the assessment are that a large percentage of grade 8 students attend schools in which music and visual arts were taught usually by specialists most students attended schools in which instruction following district or state curricula was offered in music and visual arts but not in theater or dance and most visual arts and music instruction took place in school facilities that were dedicated to that subject JH The Other Side of the Report Card Maurice J. Guskey, 2008-08-06 Implement standards based grading practices that accurately and equitably report student achievement. Standards based education poses a variety of challenges for grading and reporting practices. This edited volume examines critical issues in standards based grading and provides specific suggestions for improving policies and practices at the school and classroom levels. The chapters: Describe traditional school practices that inhibit the implementation of standards based grading; Address how teachers can assign fair and accurate grades to English language learners and students with special needs; Examine legal issues related to grading; Discuss why report card grades and large scale assessment scores may vary; Offer communication strategies with parents. TExES 191 Generalist EC-6 (191) Luis A. Dr. Ross provides guidance for individuals and institutions embracing the important role of developing mentoring programs or serving as a mentor to youth. However, what makes Dr. Ross's work such a critically important book for any individual or institution considering such a role is its insight into the social cultural framework within which mentoring must occur at every level from elementary school through college. Equally insightful is the structure that such programs must take in response to the socio cultural constructs of the families, communities, and institutions where they will occur. There are far more quantitative studies than qualitative on the topic of mentoring. This text addresses that discrepancy and provides the results of several qualitative studies on African American males. There is hardly any that offer a mixed method perspective that combine quantitative and qualitative methodological approaches This text reports on the research results that are qualitative in nature in addition to some that are from a quantitative and mixed method approach Graphonomics H.S.R. Kao,R. Hoosain,G.P. Van Galen,1986-09-01

Graphonomics is the newly created term for the science of handwriting and other graphic skills The Second International Conference on the Neural and Motor Aspects of Handwriting attracted contributions from experimental psychologists neuropsychologists neurologists linguists biophysicists and computer scientists from 12 countries This volume the proceedings of the conference features clinical studies of the neural basis of agraphia and dysgraphia from brain damaged patients The motor aspects of handwriting are further extended to new areas of interests Research on handwriting in the English Chinese and Japanese languages forms the first attempt in the field to investigate handwriting from the psycholinguistic perspective of different languages Helping Parents Help Their Kids Ennio Cipani,1999 Helping Parents Help Their Kids is a guide both for clinicians who help families and for parents who have children with behavior problems The author provides three ways to address clinical issues in designing and implementing child behavior management plans a general behavioral consultation model a specific behavioral model and an empirically tested advice package for problems that can occur in different family contexts Each chapter provides early research on a specific strategy and several forms to use in the clinical environment Parents will find this book helpful because the information is presented in a user friendly format The author explains how parents can learn specific strategies to deal with six common problems These problems include teaching both children and adolescents to comply with the rules of the house dealing with disruptive behavior and addressing problems in school Helping Parents Help Their Kids offers both clinicians and parents effective procedures without the technical jargon many typical behavioral texts use Instead the author explains these methods in common sense terms that will be a welcome change for all who want to find solutions for their child s behavioral problems
