English a Changing Medium for Education Constant Leung, Brian V. Street, 2012-07-25 In this volume a range of authors from different international contexts argue that the notion of communicative competence in English hitherto largely referenced to metropolitan native speaker norms has to be expanded to take account of diverse contexts of use for a variety of purposes It also discusses the popular belief that language and literacy should simply be regarded as a technical skill which confers universal benefits and that it should be replaced with a social practice view that recognises situated variations and diversity This volume we believe provides a reference point for extended research and practice in these areas that will be of interest to wide range of people engaged in language and literacy education Decolonizing Educational Assessment

High-Stakes Testing in Education Theo J.H.M Eggen, Gordon Stobart, 2015-10-14 High stakes educational testing is a global phenomenon which is increasing in both scale and importance Assessments are high stakes when there are serious consequences for one or more stakeholders Historically tests have largely been used for selection or for providing a licence to practise making them high stakes for the test takers Testing is now also used for the purposes of improving standards of teaching and learning and of holding schools accountable for their students results These tests then become high stakes for teachers and schools especially when they have to meet externally imposed targets More recent has been the emergence of international comparative testing which has become high stakes for governments and policy makers as their education systems are judged in relation to the performances of other countries In this book we draw on research which examines each of these uses of high stakes testing The articles evaluate the impact of such assessments and explore the issues of value and fairness which they raise To underline the international appeal of high stakes testing the studies are drawn from Australia Africa the Caribbean Europe former Soviet republics and North America Collectively they illustrate the power of high stakes assessment in shaping for better or for worse policy making and schooling This book was originally published as a special issue of Assessment in Education Principles Policy Practice Science Education in Canada Christine D. Tippet, Todd M. Milford, 2019-07-01 This book offers a meso level description of demographics science education and science teacher education Representing all 13 Canadian jurisdictions the book provides local insights that serve as the basis for exploring the Canadian system as a whole and function as a common starting point from which to identify causal relationships that may be associated with Canada's successes The book highlights commonalities consistencies and distinctions across the provinces and territories in a thematic analysis of the 13 jurisdiction specific chapters Although the analysis indicates a network of policy and practice issues warranting further consideration the diverse nature of Canadian science education makes simple identification of causal relationships elusive Canada has a reputation for strong science achievement However there is currently limited literature on science education in Canada at the general level or in specific areas such as Canadian science curriculum or science teacher education This book fills that gap by presenting a thorough description of science education at the provincial territorial level as well as a more holistic description of pressing issues for Canadian science education
