Horror Films for Children Catherine Lester, 2021-10-21 Children and horror are often thought to be an incompatible meeting of audience and genre beset by concerns that children will be corrupted or harmed through exposure to horror media Nowhere is this tension more clear than in horror films for adults where the demonic child villain is one of the genre s

most enduring tropes However horror for children is a unique category of contemporary Hollywood cinema in which children are addressed as an audience with specific needs fears and desires and where child characters are represented as sympathetic protagonists whose encounters with the horrific lead to cathartic subversive and productive outcomes Horror Films for Children examines the history aesthetics and generic characteristics of children s horror films and identifies the horrific child as one of the defining features of the genre where it is as much a staple as it is in adult horror but with vastly different representational interpretative and affective possibilities Through analysis of case studies including blockbuster hits Gremlins cult favourites The Monster Squad and indie darlings Coraline Catherine Lester asks what happens to the horror genre and the horrific children it represents when children are the target audience

The Architecture of Error Francesca Hughes, 2014-11-07 Why the rise of redundant precision in architecture and the accompanying fear of error are key to understanding the discipline s needs anxieties and desires When architects draw even brick walls to six decimal places with software designed to cut lenses it is clear that the logic that once organized relations between precision and material error in construction has unraveled Precision already a promiscuous term seems now to have been uncoupled from its contract with truthfulness Meanwhile error and the always political space of its dissent has reconfigured itself In The Architecture of Error Francesca Hughes argues that behind the architect s acute fetishization of redundant precision lies a special fear of physical error What if we were to consider the pivotal cultural and technological transformations of modernism to have been driven not so much by the causes its narratives declare she asks as by an unspoken horror of loss of control over error material life and everything that matter stands for Hughes traces the rising intolerance of material vagaries from the removal of ornament to digitalized fabrication that produced the blind rejection of organic materials the proliferation of material testing and the rhetorical obstacles that blighted cybernetics Why is it she asks that the more we cornered physical error the more we feared it Hughes s analysis of redundant precision exposes an architecture of fear whose politics must be called into question Proposing error as a new category for architectural thought Hughes draws on other disciplines and practices that have interrogated precision and failure citing the work of scientists Nancy Cartwright and Evelyn Fox Keller and visual artists Gordon Matta Clark Barbara Hepworth Rachel Whiteread and others These non architect practitioners she argues show that error need not be excluded and precision can be made accountable Splicing Life United States. President's Commission for the Study of Ethical Problems in Medicine and Biomedical and Behavioral Research, 1982 The Surprising Effects of Sympathy David Marshall, 1988 Through readings of works by Marivaux Diderot Rousseau and Mary Shelley David Marshall provides a new interpretation of the eighteenth century preoccupation with theatricality and sympathy Sympathy is seen not as an instance of sensibility or natural benevolence but rather as an aesthetic and epistemological problem that must be understood in relation to the problem of theatricality Placing novels in the context of eighteenth century writing about theater fiction and painting Marshall argues that an unusual variety of authors and texts were concerned with the possibility of entering into someone else's thoughts and feelings He shows how key eighteenth century works reflect on the problem of how to move touch and secure the sympathy of readers and beholders in the realm of both art and life Marshall discusses the demands placed upon novels to achieve certain effects the ambivalence of writers and readers about those effects and the ways in which these texts can be read as philosophical meditations on the differences and analogies between the experiences of reading a novel watching a play beholding a painting and witnessing the spectacle of someone suffering The Surprising Effects of Sympathy traces the interaction of sympathy and theater and the artistic and philosophical problems that these terms represent in dialogues about aesthetics moral philosophy epistemology psychology autobiography the novel and society
