Skyscrapers are very tall buildings which are found in many cities around the world. These huge structures are named 'skyscrapers' because they are so tall that they seem to touch, or 'scrape', the sky. You can sometimes see a skyscraper from far away and also recognize some cities thanks to their famous skyscrapers.

Early skyscrapers were built with iron and steel, but modern skyscrapers are made of steel, concrete and a lot of glass. Skyscraper construction is useful in large cities because land is very expensive, so the best direction for the creation of a large building is up. This also means there is more space for parks and public areas.

The Empire State Building is a famous skyscraper in New York with more than 100 floors. Tourists go to the top for a great view of the city. The tallest skyscraper in the world is in Dubai (the Burj Khalifa). It is 828 meters high, which is about the length of eight-and-a-half football fields, and it was built in only five years. The weight of the concrete used is equivalent to 100,000 elephants!

- 1 These buildings are called 'skyscrapers' because they are high / huge.
 2 Skyscrapers can tell you which city you're in / if you're far away.
 3 Both early and modern skyscrapers are made of glass / steel.
 4 Skyscrapers save / take up space in big cities.
 5 The Burj Khalifa was made with concrete / elephants.
