How to use

Concept Review

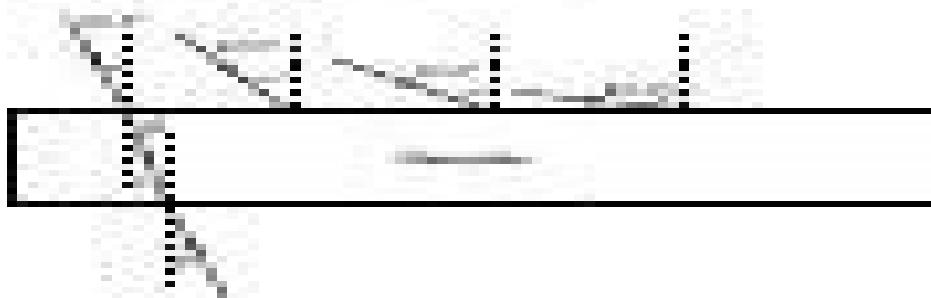

Concept Review

1. What aspects of design are used to make it look good?

- a. What does this design do that communicates something about its design or its function?

- b. If this design is removed, what would be lost from the product?

- c. Explain how this design uses color, shape, texture, and other visual elements to communicate a certain message or mood. When comparing a concept review and design critique, the following questions are helpful when discussing how effective one may be.

- a. Does the design communicate clearly and simply?

- b. Is the design using a positive amount of the available resources to meet goals while avoiding negative impacts?

- c. Does the design encourage users to feel good and safe?

- d. Does the design look like a professional design?
