Table 1

This system is designed to capture the essential (200–2000 Hz) lower range of the voice spectrum, to capture the early part of any other possible speech. This system does not distinguish the male and female voices in any way. They will therefore be converted to an 80% male voice. It is believed that the best method to do such a task is to convert to a male voice, whereas the problem in the male is to convert to a female is without adding any extra low frequency tone to the original spectrum. To reproduce the effects of the original female being the male conversion is a task not needed to be done.
