Transcriptional and Chromatin Regulation in Adaptive and Innate Immune Cells Keiko Ozato, Dinah S. Singer, 2020-05-22. Transcription depends on an ordered sequence of events starting with i) setting of the enhancer and chromatin environment, ii) assembly of DNA binding and general transcription factors, iii) initiation, elongation, processing of mRNA, and termination, followed by iv) creation of epigenetic marks and memory formation. Highlighting the importance of these activities, more than 10% of total genes are dedicated to regulating transcriptional mechanisms. This area of research is highly active, and new insights are continuously being added to our knowledge. Cells of the immune system have unique features of gene regulation to support diverse tasks required for innate and adaptive immunity. Innate immunity involves the recognition of external infectious and noxious agents as well as internal cancer cell components and the elimination of these agents by non-specific mechanisms. Adaptive immunity involves gene rearrangement to achieve highly specific T and B cell responses, imparting the capability of self and non-self discrimination. This requires transcription and epigenetic regulation. Adaptive immunity also employs epigenetic memory, enabling recapitulation of prior transcription. Recent advances in nuclear architecture, chromatin structure, and transcriptional regulation have provided new insights into immune responses. The increased understanding of these molecular mechanisms is now affording opportunities to improve therapeutic strategies for various diseases.

The Exoplanet Handbook Michael Perryman, 2018-08-30. With the discovery of planets beyond our solar system 25 years ago, exoplanet research has expanded dramatically with new state-of-the-art ground-based and space-based missions dedicated to their discovery and characterisation. With more than 3 500 exoplanets now known, the complexity of the discovery techniques, observations, and physical characterisation have grown exponentially. This Handbook ties all these avenues of research together across a broad range of exoplanet science: Planet formation, exoplanet interiors and atmospheres, and habitability are discussed, providing in-depth coverage of our knowledge to date. Comprehensively updated from the first edition, it includes instrumental and observational developments, in-depth treatment of the new Kepler mission results, and hot Jupiter atmospheric studies, and major updates on models of exoplanet formation. With extensive references to the research literature and appendices covering all individual exoplanet discoveries, it is a valuable reference to this exciting field for both incoming and established researchers.
